

It has been two years since this web sight was built. I have left it untouched until now. I am adding this body of work to it without interfering with anything else, in order to archive in some small way what existed here previously. I pray you find it useful.

There is a law of physics which states that “for every action there is an equal and opposite reaction”. If we believe that God created Heaven and Earth, then all the laws of Nature, all the Natural Laws are God’s laws. Einstein demonstrated that the Universe consists of two things: Energy and Matter. He submitted that one can be converted into the other, but that neither can be destroyed. Hubble showed that the Universe is expanding.

These three truths together demonstrate that the Universe and all that is in it, are an equal and opposite reaction to the action of Creation. More importantly, the evidence of that reaction, as born out in Einstein’s equation, $E=MC^2$; proves that Creation, the original action, can’t be born of Natural laws. It requires a Supernatural Power, able to gather together Energy at a rate equivalent to the rate at which Matter unravels: the speed of light squared. All this is explained in far greater detail beginning at page 533 of a book entitled “Revolution Number Ten”, which can be found at this web sight. It was a cumbersome attempt at explaining some ideas I hadn’t yet got my mind around. But if you will be patient enough to wade through it, you will find yourself prepared for the rest of what I have to share.

When we speak, the vibrations made by our vocal cords use the Energy in our bodies to create an Energy wave in the atmosphere. It is pure Energy, like the Energy that travels away from a pebble tossed into a pond until it is absorbed by the medium in which it travels.

In the beginning, there was a word, and the word was God. The “Alpha” was pure Energy and in the end the “Omega” will be pure Energy once again. When the men of science calculate back to the instant before the “Big Bang” they find that the laws of physics do not hold. I would submit to you that until the reaction to Creation took place, they did not exist; just as the components of Mass did not exist until they were gathered together in a manner and arrangement, which the Bible assures us, was not born of chaos.

It is reasonable to imagine the origin of Earth as a molten Mass “without form” as it is described on the first day in Genesis. In order for it to have form it would have first had to begin to spin. Because the description of what constitutes a day is linked to our notion of time, men have inferred that Genesis refers to a day on Earth. It is men, who have made reference to our Sun as the source of light on the first day, not Genesis. There is no specific reference to days on Earth. There was no way that Moses could have fathomed his “flat” Earth spinning on its axis. It is “Science” that has taught us that the light which comes to us from across time and space, left one place so many years ago and another place, some other number of light years ago. Genesis refers to the “light”, not to the Sun or the Moon. As for days on Earth, don’t they begin when light comes to the Firmament from the Sun? That occurs on the fourth day. The Moon cast its light as a result of the light of the Sun, so it could have been in orbit prior to the ignition of the Sun without casting light into the “Firmament”. Has the “Great and Powerful Church of Science” determined beyond doubt the day on which the Sun ignited, and if it has, has it also a date for the day in which the Earth first succumb to its orbit?

As Earth cooled enough to allow water to form on its featureless surface, the atmosphere was still little more than dust “and darkness was upon the face of the deep”. When the dust settled, the light that shown through was starlight. Light that could only exist as a result of the creation of Matter. Matter now allowed to unravel in the reaction to Creation. There is still no light in the “Deep. But without the Sun there was darkness upon the “Face of the Deep”. Then came to the Earth an atmosphere and Genesis predicts that it only exists as high above us as the water exists above us. It says that, again there was evening and morning, but you have inferred that it was the Earth that experienced evening and morning: it is not the “Literal” interpretation.

The Science shows us that the landmasses of Earth were then pushed up by Volcanoes and by the overlapping of the Earth’s mantle in the crush of the movement of the Tectonic Plates. So that land appeared for the first time, as the water gathered in the oceans. So said Genesis. Before there could be animals there had to be oxygen. Before there could be an abundance of renewable oxygen there had to be plants. So predicted Genesis. Science says animal life came first to the oceans. So says Genesis. But for all these forecasts there are those who will say, “Yes, but it says that on the third day God made all the plants but He didn’t make the Sun until the fourth day. So how did the plants grow?” That’s a problem if you’re stuck on a strict literal interpretation of the Bible. Galileo had to deny that the Earth revolved around the Sun to save his life from the hand of the “Church”; which is the kind of thing that caused our Founding Fathers to embrace the idea of “Separation of ‘Church’ and State” in the first place. But God was not diminished by the truth when He is the truth. It is man who is diminished: man who denies the truth of God and also man who denies the work of His hand.

For those who would argue against Evolution I would say to you that the story of the Bible is the story of Man’s evolution as a result of God’s Holy plan. We have been growing spiritually for nearly six thousand years. You cannot say that God does not teach in Parable. Both Joseph and Daniel were raised up to the glory of God for their ability to explain the Dreams of Pharaoh and Nebuchadnezzar respectively; dreams that were most certainly metaphorical.

On the other side of the coin, the greatest minds in physics today have offered up a new and evolving idea they call “String Theory” which claims to show mathematically that there are as many as four Parallel Universes existing side by side with ours. Their fellow scientists are delighted with the notion and have no objection to calling it science and teaching it in our schools as such; but if we assign these other universes names like Heaven or Hell, this speculation, this theory, has become taboo. These other realms cease to exist. Science may speculate that some of these “strings” of vibrating energy can pass between these parallel universes, accounting for gravity’s relatively weak power; and yet those who suggest that ‘thoughts’ can travel to us from other realms are dismissed out of hand. The idea that we can receive communications from Angels (or even from Muses, as the Greeks perceived them) is seen by those same people of science as somehow both foolish and ignorant. They suggest that a collision between Universes may have caused the Big Bang. Let us see how well these theories are received, or will they say that our Universe travels at the speed of light squared relative to other Universes? Let them prove it without conceding the super natural.

Genesis says that God prepared the “seeds” of plants on the third day and cast ‘Two Great Lights” into the “Firmament” on the fourth. This is the argument of the chicken or the egg. On one side we have those who cling to a literal interpretation of language given to people unable to grasp the concept of single celled organisms. On the other side we have people who say that because it is not explained in modern day scientific terms, it must not be true. But what was the first cell, of the first plant, if not the seed of all plants to come? Did that first cell exist before the warm light of the Sun shone upon this planet and energized this solar system? Probably not if life is the result of chance. But life is not the result of random chance. Nor can science prove definitively that the first living cell did not exist prior to the Sun’s light hitting this planet. The point is moot.

I heard a man say that he could not believe in a God who gave dominion over the earth to mankind. It is obvious that He did, for we have most certainly dominated it. So that his becomes a statement of rejection rather than of observation. As a parent gives toys to their children that they might learn from them, so is the Earth to Mankind; but people are confused because they are so selfish and immature that they believe that God Created man so that He might serve man. Do parents teach children to destroy their possessions, or to care for them? The truth is that God Created man so that Man might glorify God by “Evolving” into something worthy of being served by the Host of Heaven as He said they would. Does that mean we came along a genetic line that had a common ancestor with Apes? The genetic structure of all life is so similar that it is hard to deny the possibility. At the same time, that which made us “Man” was not breathed into us until the sixth day according to the Holy Book. For you scientists without an understanding, I will tell you that a day is like a thousand years to God and as Creation is a function of “Squaring” the constant in the Equation we find that a thousand year day, squared, becomes a million years. In such a scenario the six days of Creation do not coincide with the chronology of Earth, or even the “Origin of ‘all’ Species” but of Man’s evolution to today, according to the “Scientific” record. We have only just arrived. For you “Religious” zealots, we have the same conformation in our six thousand year walk with God. It is God who has been raising us, preparing us, justifying us in our right, our inalienable right, to justice and equality. Make no mistake; it is those who would make themselves as our God, with dominion over our lives, who resist our allegiance to The Father and to The Son: and who would insist that we deny Them in our public places.

In the end, the determination of scientific truth is predicated on the ability to predict an outcome. Likewise, God is found in the truth, not in superstition. Nor can He ultimately be served by superstition. Contained within the following pages is a group of letters, which have been sent to a number of different people and, or, organizations. With each letter, the group of letters sent to each recipient grew by one. It is my belief that they contain the understanding necessary to unravel the Mysteries of God, the great riddle of the Bible, as I have been blessed to understand them. It is my contention that when the world has come to understand the answers to the riddle that it will become obvious that the outcome of things to come has been predicted precisely enough to meet with scientific scrutiny.

Before I leave you to ponder the letters I would like to prime your imagination with a few examples of the way God's secrets have been hidden. For one, the ancient Hebrew language had no vowels: only consonants. Also, words that would mean something in one language might mean something else in a different period in another language and still another in another time. It is the "Word" of God which has meaning, not necessarily the spelling. Things that came in visions, came to men of an ancient world in ways that they could relate to. A soldier son, of a friend of mine, recently returned from Iraq. He related to his father, that when eating, the desert men kept one hand behind their back and ate with the other. It speaks to a reality that western People's may find hard to fathom. But because water is so scarce in the desert, there is no water to wash their hands and the hand behind their back is the hand they use to clean themselves. Now, consider a desert people who fought over water in a parched and primitive world: then gauge their accounts of visions against people of the Twentieth Century who claim to be witnesses to ships from outer space, which they have described as "Flying Saucers".

Remember that the Ancient words had meanings. Israel means "Those who prevail in God". One need not be a Jew to be right with God and to prevail in Him. Nor does heritage give anyone that guarantee since Christ brought "A New Thing" into the world. In this same way, it should be remembered that Christ made sure we understood that there were at least two swords in the hands of the Apostles on the day that He was taken away to be tried and crucified. In this way, no one could say that He lacked the ability to react violently. In as much, no man or woman who believes in violent reaction can be called Christian. The physical landmarks of Jerusalem and Judah are also symbolic of Nations and People who had a relationship with God based on a Covenant: a Covenant now lost, that Jews (Jews who have not accepted Jesus as the Christ), still believe to be the correct path to prevail in God. When Pharaoh conquered the peoples and the lands to his north as he build Egypt to its most glorious State, he defeated and captured a city which he renamed Armageddon. This place is no longer part of the Egyptian territories. As best as I can discern it is located in modern day Syria. Perhaps we will end the world in conflicts begun there. But I suspect that were I to know the meaning of the word Armageddon as Pharaoh assigned it to that defeated city, and the meaning of the word in Hebrew as Revelations refers to it, my understanding might be greatly enhanced.

The Great Almighty is able to imagine the world in “Real” time and so it is possible for Him to know the beginning and the end and still give you the “Free Will” to decide your own fate in your own time. Do you then imagine that within the stories, which are the historical accounts of God’s relationship with man, He is unable to seal up stories of things to come as well? If He is the Master of all things, is He not the Master of metaphor?

You will find mistakes in my work. I am very human. What’s more, I have interpreted a large body of work without a lot of time for reflection. The first letter to follow this one is addressed to Herald. In it I speak of Samson and I suggest that it is those who regain their sight who will pull down the Temples, but that is inconsistent with the story. The Clergy of this country have indeed been blind guides. The clergy of “Churches” have always been the “Tail”. The Harlotries of the world have enticed them and for a time they lost their power in the generation of the “Baby Boomers” because the youth of that generation saw their hypocrisy and rejected them. In these last years their power has returned, but their sight has not. They have been seduced by the power their Harlotries have brought to their Temples. The United States, the dominant force in this world today, is the “Egypt” of this new age. So that it is the clergy of this nation who, more than any other country’s “Churches”, are given power by their Harlotries. And as it was in the days of Nebuchadnezzar when the first sister played the Harlot to her shame with Egypt, so now does the second sister (the Nation State of Israel) play the Harlot with the new Egypt, America. So it will be that when the light is manifest in the world and Christ reigns over those who love meekness rather than power, that the temples of man will be pulled down. Those very individuals who have strength but are blind and destined to spiritual death in their own hypocrisy: who will not turn to God and relinquish power to The Christ, whose name is Jesus; will chain themselves to the dogmas and the doctrines, which are the pillars of their respective churches, synagogues, mosques and shrines and so it will be that they are brought down.

If all that was, and all that will be in the end, is God in the form of Einstein's "E", then one can see the relevance of all things connected with the Internet beings dubbed "E". It is, after all, a binary system. God has said that He is engaged in a battle with the forces of darkness. These are the days in which those who are willing to seek the truth will find it, for truth is the light and in the Latter Days the light of the world will increase a thousand fold. Let us hope that He did not mean it literally, but as a metaphor for the truth. Then those from all corners and all arguments, who are willing to open their eyes, will see the Kingdom of Heaven at hand and reach out to it in the Holy Name of the Master who is Jesus the One True Christ.

The Bible has four "Major" Prophets in its compliment. For those of you still looking for the meaning of 9/11, I would suggest to you that each of them had something to say on the matter, so numbered in King James' Version. Look to them and then to the letters. This is the trumpet call come to you like lightning across the sky as words in the medium of "E". Let there be no more delay.

Herald,

I have heard you make the argument that because you do not have a “Doctrine” you are not a church, but I have heard you teach that Jesus is God and was from the beginning. I have also heard you state what I took to be a claim that you are of the “Elect”. The Bible warns that one should not judge lest they be judged. It seems to me that somewhere it even says Judge not who shall enter the Kingdom of Heaven lest ye be judged and yet I understood you to say that you have judged yourself among the Elect. Even if there is no fault in your assessment of your place among the elect, if you or anyone else, should be found to be of that number, then your statement that Jesus is God would have to be reconciled against Jesus’ teaching that those who make their way to the Kingdom of Heaven will be one with Him even as He is one with the Father: so that in your confusion you have called yourself God. Certainly that constitutes Doctrine. Christ asked God to “let this cup pass” if it were possible, but never the less, “Thy will be done.” Does God therefore ask His own permission and then deny His own request? He does not.

In 2002 I brought you a book written in my “Pen” name and left it at the front desk of your “Church”. On the day the Catholics call Good Friday, in this year of our Lord 2004, I “Faxed” to you an introduction to the Mysteries of God and attached a letter in the name given me by my parents. You have ignored me twice, but had you known my name which is written in the book of truth, you would have listened.

The story of Kane and Able is the story of a Church of stone versus a Church built in the heart. It is the story of a stony heart versus a heart of flesh. It is the story of sacrifice versus mercy. God has accepted both in their time but He has never had any regard for the Law over Love. Kane concerned himself with the things of the “earth” while Able delivered unto God portions of the flock.

The story is repeated with Ishmael and Isaac. Ishmael is later represented by the desert men who refused to drink wine at the behest of the Prophet. Even at the command of the Lord God they would not drink because they honored a pledge to their Father on earth. But they were not destroyed, for God was pleased that they kept their oath to their father. To this day, it is Islam that keeps the Law but denies the Son while the rest of the world denies the Law. In so doing, they serve God's plan, but He has no regard for their sacrifices. Isaac, like Able, is the second born and enjoys the Covenant with God and his offerings of sacrifice obtain mercy for God's Chosen People in the promise of the Lamb to come of that lineage.

The third story is that of The "Synagogues of Satan" that have lost the "Mercy Seat" when the Ark of the Covenant was taken away after the Covenant was broken by the Jews. The "First born Son, Israel", the Jewish Nation, will not receive his Father's inheritance, even though they continue to make sacrifices; for the God of Abraham has no regard for sacrifices. He regards a heart of flesh and mercy to administer the Law. Christ is the personification of the Law contained in flesh and having mercy. Therefore, if Jesus lives in you, these things are present in you as well and for this God does have regard. A church of stone or a radio ministry, will not build a place for God in your heart nor are they a substitute. These are the three stories of Kane and Able as the Prophets witnessed that the House of the Lord has three stories.

You teach that Jesus will come to resurrect the dead, but have you not heard that God is not God of the dead but of the living? When the day has come to open the book of life, it will be the sleeping that are raised. It is my place to proceed my Master to fight for the dead: and while you do not understand that even the Muslims and Jews will be judged according to what they have done with what they have been taught in a deceitful world, those who call themselves Christians must hope for the same leniency from a benevolent God; for they have embraced the Harlot and followed the Beast. You yourself have taken the silver which the Lord has refined out of the Churches and put it in your own tent. You have taken the Treasure of God, His Mysteries which I revealed to you last spring, and buried them. Christ turned over the tables in the Synagogues but you tithe to build a ministry while neglecting the Law when Jesus is the Law and so you are like the Synagogues in the days of Jesus: just like all the other churches of these dark days. It is the Prodigal whose father referred to him as dead but now lives. Your organization takes God's tribute by asking for the tithe of the people and unless I miss my guess you are a tax-exempt organization; and reading Matthew 17:24-27 we see whose son you are: for this reason was Paul a tent maker. We see therefore that you teach the Doctrine of men. Your Government has mingled the blood of innocents with your sacrifices. Therefore I have become a vinedresser to you and to those who follow you.

When you were young you set out to understand the Bible in the company of men. The Bible is a road map and a riddle as well as the narrative of God. You have studied the map diligently, until you know all the lines and all its pictures. I, on the other hand, knew only a very little about the Bible and its stories, but I knew right from wrong as God declared it. So that my life was spent on the road, and I found that the roads which lead to success were all crooked. Still, I remained on the straight path. And because I humbled myself before the Lord, He showed me a thousand things: greed and corruption, violence, jealousy and hate. He also showed me the good and the path to change. So that when people come to you and say "Where is the mountain and what does it look like?"; you show them a line on a map with your finger and point to a picture of a mountain. And when they come to you and say, "Which way to the sea?"; you trace another line with your finger and show them a drawing of the sea. But I have been to the mountain and I have been to the sea. So that, when I came at last to the Bible as a servant, I understood what I was shown. It is now my place in the scheme of things to show you what I have seen, for the Lord is not a picture and the road to him is not a line on a piece of paper. The Lord is real and the path to him must be walked, not pointed to.

The story of Samson and is the story of those who would attempt to serve God through the churches of men and as such have lost the sight of their eyes. They have loved the Harlot by believing that they could discern the Mysteries of God through their own wisdom: that they could be as God knowing the meaning of those things which He has kept hidden until the appointed time. The Harlot has deceived them from the beginning, but when they have had time to consider the truth, if they should turn and become Sons of Light, accepting God's laws as to whether a thing is good or is evil and shining the light of truth into the darkness of corruption; it is then that the strength of the Lord will manifest itself in them that they might pull down the temples of men to the glory of God, and Spiritual death shall be no more.

You have taught that even the Pharisees understood that if they let the Apostles speak and it was untrue, that it would be seen as untrue, but if they silenced them, they risked offending God. Read what I have sent you. Watch the DVDs that you might understand the connection between the things you teach and the world you live in. Share it if you are as wise as the Pharisees. If you would only be open to the truth, believing as a child that Christ could deliver you as He taught you to pray that He would, according to your faith you would be able to see.

What began as a letter "Faxed" to you last spring has now grown to several letters. Each contains new revelations that were unclear to me at the writing of the ones which proceeded it. Just as with the letters I have written to others, everything I have written you will be shared with the world whether you are part of the Good News or continue to bury it, and the light will shine in the darkness whether you dwell in light or in darkness. So that you will either be part of the light or exposed by it.

AMEN

Dear Mr. Still,

I want to thank you and congratulate you for the work that you have done in compiling “The Money Masters”. Given the outcome of many of the other confrontations people have had with the forces you have indicted, I would also like to acknowledge your courage in taking this news to the world.

I had thought to enclose a DVD from Mike Ruppert and “From the Wilderness”, but it has come to my attention that that they are aware of your work, so I trust you are aware of them. The forces converging against our freedom come from more than one direction, and the corruption of the world threatens our very existence; but you already know that.

Mr. Ruppert is as thorough in making his case as you have been. I am also enclosing a letter I wrote to him, along with an envelope like the one referred to in his letter (less your own DVD). I hope you will take the time to investigate what has been shared with you. God’s light has shone on the problem just as you had hoped it would. It has been so from the beginning. But unless the world is open enough to believe as a child in God’s deliverance, the world will never see it.

AMEN

Dear Mr. Ruppert,

Because you have alluded to God in your work, I will introduce myself to you with scripture, and I would remind you that, he who will not look, cannot see.

In the Garden of Eden, Adam and Eve would be seduced into believing that with knowledge they could be as God, knowing right from wrong. Once they had set aside God as their source of all knowledge of good and evil they found themselves naked before God.

Noah was the last of the “Mighty Men”. God destroyed all the others, leading us to believe that God does not wish us to be mighty and confirming that it is the meek who shall inherit the earth. But being of that world which was destroyed in the flood, Noah knew of those things which Adam and Eve had passed down. Being as Gods, the “Mighty Men” knew bribery and extortion, vengeance and war to be a part of life which cannot be avoided in a world where men act as God rather than submitting to God. And so, in his drunkenness, Noah revealed the base things of this world to one of his sons (Ham), and it was reckoned as Noah’s nakedness. So that his other two sons would walk backwards with a cover to lay over their father, Noah. But the descendants of Ham would become the Canaanites, (whom God would dispossess to make a place for the chosen people of Israel) and so through them the lessons of a Godless world were spread far and wide.

Many people try to insist that the Bible must be taken literally. Yet, Christ taught in metaphor, with parables. I believe that God not only has the power to make much of the Bible true as a literal historical document and at the same time a work of metaphor; but that He also is able to make the words confusing until the days of Revelation. I believe it is no task at all for Him to have the words recorded in ancient languages, knowing that the translations of a given age will reveal a given, even changing, understanding.

There are those who teach that the Baptism of Fire will rain down on the earth with the second coming of Christ. I would tell you that the Baptism of Fire began at the end of the Baptism of Water. I would tell you that God reached out to Noah with the offer of an olive branch, which symbolized peace, with the return of the dove. But the “nakedness” of Noah would manifest itself in his son and in the world. So that when the Prophets write of the destruction God brought upon a corrupted Israel, they end by telling us that, “His hand is stretched out still”, and though we perceive that it refers to His strength and His anger, it refers instead to His offer of peace.

The Prophets saw the House of God in visions and they reported that it had three stories. The first story of Noah’s search for the end of the Baptism of Water is told by the raven who was sent out never to return or to find rest until the first Baptism had ended. This is the wise bird who is wise in the ways of the world and it represents the first born Son Israel: the chosen people of God, led by Moses to the Promised Land in a Covenant with God; but who have yet to find rest in the second Baptism. The second bird to seek news of an end to the Baptism of Water was a dove and it would return empty handed when first it went into the world. This is a representation of John the Baptist and his proclamation of the coming of the Lord, Jesus, the Christ and the second born Son Israel. John Baptized with the water that would have quenched the fire had the people of the world been ready. But the Pharisees tithed mint and dill and neglected the law and so Christ came not to bring peace but to bring division lest a new tower of Babel reach up to Heaven itself. Christ lamented that had the fire been kindled we would not have had to wait, but as we have seen over the last two thousand years, man has not yet suffered enough to submit to God. The third story is that of the dove as it returned for a second time. It is the story of he who proclaims the second coming of the Lord Jesus at the first resurrection, as it is told in Luke 13:35.

There are those who teach the second Resurrection as the first. They count the resurrection of Jesus after He was taken from the cross as the first resurrection, but they are blind guides. Like so much of the Bible, that was the acting out of things to come. The dove will not return at the second resurrection, for it is the end of this world, the end of the reign of Jesus on earth. You can call it a forth story if you like, or you can imagine it to be the end of the house of God in earthly terms, or the third story of the dove. You will find a much greater understanding of the difference between the two Resurrections in the letters I have enclosed. But let me say here that the plan, which is referred to in those letters, was understood by its author to be political in its nature all the while it was being laid out. And because it was obvious that it required too much of a selfish world for it ever to be implemented, by the time it was completed it would have been set aside except for a dream in which Jesus spoke to me.

Forgive me Mr. Ruppert, that I have not yet read all of your book. It may be that in its pages you have revealed what I am about to share with you. But in case you have not heard: the first Resurrection, which is about to be fulfilled, is not the day of Judgment in which the Book of Life is opened and Jesus judges our deeds over a lifetime. It is, rather, the day in which Jesus takes possession of the earth as King for a thousand years. It is the day in which people make the simple choice to be for Him or against Him: when people chose to submit to God and His laws or to be as Gods knowing good from evil. Those who voted "Red" in this election voted for the killing of innocents and a President who proclaims that if you are not with him you are against him as if he were Christ. Those who voted "Blue" voted for the killing of innocents even as birth control, as well as abominations before God. They have all played the "Harlot" before God because they are the blind following the blind, and they are naked before God believing that they know good from evil.

Herald and his church gather people out of the "Churches", only to gather them to their own, claiming that theirs is no church. The people who put together the "Money Masters" make a case against the Central Banks and then suggest that the very people who the banks have bought and paid for, will somehow disenfranchise those same banks with legislation. You and your people, for all your good intentions, call people to a revolution that can only bring anarchy.

If you read all I have laid down to paper, you will see that a plan to gather the world together in the summer of 2005 has been in place since January of 2000. It offers a plan and sets a day of choice: and were it a choice to be for my work or against it, then you could dismiss it as so many have. But if you knew and understood the meaning of September the Eleventh, which we call 9/11, then you would begin to see, as I did, that the work was ordained from the beginning, and these days were foretold by the Prophet Ezekiel. What's more, if this opportunity is missed, another one does not present itself for another five years. That means five more years of decline in the Baptism of Fire, and you know as well as I, where that will lead.

On August 14th 2004, you wrote that miracles can happen without our permission. On August 15th, in the year of our Lord 2004, I left an envelope, addressed to the Members of the Kingdom Hall in Harlan, at the door of the same. I have now delivered a copy of its contents to you (less a copy of "The Money Masters, as you already know the work). Anything I have written, I have written as a gift to the world. It is my hope that you will share it in like manner. You have a growing base of people who are looking for truth, and together, I am confident that you can figure out the rest, if only you will try. I can appreciate that all this sounds too fantastic to be real. That is why Jesus told you that only those who receive the Kingdom of Heaven like a child shall enter it. You must open your heart and your head to the idea that Christ did not teach us to pray in vain, but rather that God's will be done on earth as it is in Heaven.

Lastly, the name that my parents gave me is not included, as I do not come in my own name but in the name of my master who is Jesus the one true Christ. I wrote down the words of the book as George Bailey because the name stands for each man's ability to change the world for the better by putting others first. There is no need to make me any more than that in this. The only head of Christ's Church who is worthy, is Christ Himself. He has taught you in Scripture and I have laid down the meaning as it has been given to me to see. I wish you God's speed.

AMEN

Enclosed you will find a letter that I wrote to a man named Herald Camping (the spelling may be Kamping). It was faxed to him at the offices of Family Radio in Oakland Ca. on Good Friday in the year of our Lord 2004. I have not heard from anyone, from anywhere, concerning what I recorded in the letter. So now I have given a copy of that letter to you who proclaim yourselves Jehovah's Witnesses. I have also included a letter I have written to you, along with a copy of the newspaper article referred to in the letter and a copy of the "The Money Masters", so that you may judge for yourselves.

I move when I am moved. I follow and resist as best I can the impulse to lead, lest I mislead, or find myself misled. It is not my intent to hold people up to ridicule. But, just as I have shared Mr. Camping's letter with you, I will most certainly share your letter with others if you do not. I wish you God's speed.

Dear Brother Camping,

Because you no doubt receive many letters in the course of a day, it is only logical to assume that you do not read all of them personally. It is also reasonable to assume that you deal with a lot of, for lack of a better word, “odd” stuff. Christ said that he could be judged by what he professed. He taught that the light shines in the darkness and that the darkness cannot overtake it.

I have sent you a very long letter. I ask that, if you can not read it yourself, you have someone read it from beginning to end, and that it be a person who is knowledgeable in the Gospel. In return, I will offer you $500.00 toward your ministry. If you value what I have to tell you less than the $500.00, return the letter to me and I will send you the money. But I implore to read it immediately. If you would return it, I would ask you to at least have brother Camping sign it so that I can be sure that he, at the very least, was aware of it. I am also sending you a videotape. It should be there 10:30. Its importance will be evident upon your completion of the following letter. I apologize if the timing of this seems manipulated. The plan is not mine. What I will share with you has only just come to me and so I am sending it to you because it seems right to do so. Do with it as seems right to you.

Thank you for your consideration,

Dear Brother Camping,

Thank you for reading this letter. It is long; and for good reason. The mysteries of God are unfathomable, so that any understanding of them must therefore be deep. These are the days in which men's eyes will be opened. You yourself teach that it is the end of the Church Age. You tell the followers of Jesus the Christ that they are to come out of the Church, but you do not tell them where it is they are to go, or what they are to do. It is because you have told them thus that I write you today. The Lord has given me sight that I may see. He has opened the scriptures to me and sent me to you this day, and if you do not believe that is possible, then in what do you believe? If the light is not in my words, then take my money instead, but do not turn away without hearing lest it be on your head.

I would begin with the Gospel according to Luke, and Christ's parable about the man who was given a kingdom, because you are justified in this word. I am sure you understand that the servant who buried what was given to him represents those who have not accepted Jesus as Christ and gone on to spread the Gospel. But because I have not heard you teach on the rest of the parable, please do not be offended if I write from here on as though this were an open letter: as though you are student and I am teacher. Those who took the coins that were given them and multiplied them, were, of course, the members of the Christian Church. The key to understanding the scripture however, is in the fact that the lord over these men chastised the one who made no increase: for not having at least collected interest. It is plain therefore, that the lord of this parable, operates under the laws of man, not of God. For, "not a dot" of the law was changed by Jesus and God forbade the collection of interest through the Prophets [Ezekiel 18]. When we look around today, it is not the Christians, but the Muslims, who allow no interest to be charged. It is, therefore, the lesson of this parable that upon the return of the Lord, that even though the churches have multiplied what they have been entrusted with, they have not submitted to the law of God in many things. So that, even though they are called servants of the master, the “servants” in this parable have been defiant of He who was given dominion over them. Even though their earthly masters have found pleasure in them, some have petitioned against the right of He who was given dominion to reign. What then will become of them at the return of the King?

Luke 16 tells the story of a man whose master took away his stewardship. The key to this parable lies in the understanding of the “Age”. Let us consider the church of the age, or even the churches of today, as the servant: and Christ, who is the law, as the master. So that, when any part of the law is broken with the approval of the church, in order that the church may survive, the church has made friends by means of unrighteous mammon. It is an “Age” in which the Sons of Light could not survive and so the light has gone out of the world. It is an age in which the men who commend the ways of the world do not understand that they themselves have been robbed. It is, therefore, not Christ who is the master in this parable, but rather a self-serving church who is not servant to Christ Jesus but to itself. Were the master Christ, He would know the law. He would know that He had been short changed.

Christ spoke to you and to the people of His day in parables because they were not meant to see. You were not meant to see. He spoke of things spiritual rather than those that are earthly, because the time had not yet come for light to shine in any souls except in the souls of the Sons of Light. It is my place in the scheme of things to speak to you in terms you are able to understand, so that the light may be in you. How it came to me I will share with you in good time, but for now I ask that you bear with me.

To begin with, I would like to speak of those things which are of the spirit. It is helpful to think of spirit in this way. What comes to mind when you think of a spirited horse? What is meant by the phrase, “That’s the spirit”? What would you consider to be the American Spirit? Such things are, of course, subject to interpretation. The American Spirit has become so individualized as to be little more than a slogan for selling cars and wars. But, when I was young, it was exemplified by such things as: “Thanks Giving”, Equality, Equity, Courage, Truth, Justice, Liberty and the humorous humility of Norman Rockwell. We had different heroes that attempted to represent the embodiment of certain aspects of that indefinable essence called “American”. Now, I come to you as a man who has made a long pilgrimage, and the understanding that I have comes to me as it would come to one who is imperfect. But I have come to understand Jesus best as a man who was not given a Spirit, so much as, He was the personification of that Spirit. There is no doubt that He was chosen. There is no doubt that he was anticipated. There is no doubt that he was born a man and that the Spirit of the Lord God descended upon Him. The very word personification means that those things which make up the spirit are manifest, or found, in the person referred to as the personification; just as we speak of the embodiment of an idea or a spirit as being representative of that idea or spirit. So that the Spirit of the Law that was in existence from the beginning, was in Him, and the Spirit of God descended on the Chosen One of Israel and the Spirit was in Him and He the personification of that Spirit and of the Law and yet he was a man who had to travel the road predestined.

I see the Holy Spirit in much the same light. I imagine that it descends on those who are able to embody it. When the Apostles were baptized by Christ, the Holy Spirit descended upon them. When the Disciples baptized they saw the Holy Spirit descend upon those whom they had baptized. In this way the Spirit was in the Church. When Christ instructed John to write a letter to the churches in “Revelations”, He told John to write to the Angels of the Church. He was both praising and admonishing the Spirits of the Churches. Christ taught that every child has an Angel that passes before the face of God and He taught that Angels ascended and descended Heaven upon Him, the Christ.

I would like to speak now of the signs of the tribulation. Because I do not understand the things to come as you understand them, I would ask you to be patient. It must always be remembered that the battle between good and evil is waged between God Almighty and the one known as the “great deceiver”. The reason Satan is so powerful a foe is that he is so hard to see. He does not come to us with lies, but with the truth, but it is not the whole truth. I have read the Koran and I can promise you that there are only a few verses that are in conflict with what is taught in the Old Testament. All of the churches that teach Christianity take their facts from scripture and yet they ignore scripture. They have always absolved wars: often absolved the collection of interest and increase: even taken money for absolution. They have called priests Father. As of late they have allowed remarriage and now some would absolve homosexuality and marriage of the same. Judaism still waits for the Christ because they expected a political solution. Not someone who would save the world from itself, so much as, someone who would give them power in that world. The New Testament speaks of two who were gathering disciples of their own, [just prior to the arrival of Jesus as teacher], that intended to start revolts against Rome’s grip on the Jews. I have been told that Barrabas, who was freed in place of Jesus, was guilty of crimes of insurrection and was therefore embraced by the people. The Dead Sea Scrolls bear witness as well to the history of those Zealots that died in defiance of Rome.

People today, set and await the trumpet sound that will mark the days of the tribulation. Some insist that even though the Gospel is crystal clear that Jesus spoke in metaphor [parable], we are to take everything in the Bible literally. They insist that, even though the Prophets said that we would be blind and deaf to the truth and Christ explained that His metaphors were the means by which our eyes and ears would be kept closed; there are those who insist that “ALL” the “Word” is literal. They look to the signs in Revelations without comparing the visions of John to the visions of Peter, that first sanctified Gentiles into God’s redemption in Christ. If I were to write out before you the formula by which a rocket makes its way from earth to space, you would not be able to make any sense of it unless you were schooled in such matters. So it is with our Father's house. Though John and the Prophets were shown its dimensions and its arrangement: without understanding, how can you make sense of what is seen in visions?

When Jesus sent the Seventy [I'm inclined to believe seventy-two because its 6x12] out into the world to gather the harvest, the Sons of Light returned with joyous news, and when they shared it with Jesus, He declared to them that indeed, He had seen Satan falling from Heaven. The letters of the Apostles refer to the brethren as Saints and to the tribulation they faced in their own days. The Revelations given to John were preceded by a trumpet blast. Christ told the Apostles before He was crucified that they would see the Kingdom "before" they died. The heavens were opened and Christ was visible within them, standing at the right hand God, at the trial of Stephen. But the people would not see. They covered their ears and would not hear. In order to reconcile these things against the obvious fact that Christ has not yet returned, it will be necessary for you to look at things in a different light, with eyes that see differently.

The letters of the Apostles tell the story of the beginnings of Christ's Church. There was, even then, dissention and division within it. By the time John was given his revelation there were seven churches with seven angels: of seven different spirits. We know this because Jesus praised and, or admonished, each of those four He spoke to, in different ways. Seven is a prime number. It is the third prime number, one and three being the first two. All are indivisible and all are significant. Seven is a number used to represent a larger more spiritually representation of a number. But, as you shall see, it is even more significant than that, for it represents the sum of all things.

When the Catholics practice their faith they symbolically give their body to Christ. All the churches understand, and refer to those who are Christians as the "Body of Christ". Christ gave the Apostles bread at the last super and called it His flesh. He gave them wine and called it His blood. In this way His body and His blood would live on in mankind. Over time, those who made up the Body of Christ were persecuted just as Christ had told them they must be. Over time there was still more division. When Rome was unable to stop the worship of our Lord Jesus, Rome claimed to embrace Christ. Over time, each church installed its own ideologies and gave life to its own spirit and the words of Jesus were made true that He had come to bring division, not peace, into the world. Each division meant a new church with a new leadership: a new head. And so, Christ was separated as the Head of His church and a body deprived of its head will die. The light, that Jesus promised the Disciples they would see before they died, went out of the world with death of those who resisted unto death, and to this day, it has been reduced to an occasional flicker. As Christ told us, the Sons of light are not wise in the ways of this age and so they have no friends, nor skills with which to survive. The ages old war between good and evil, between Satan and God Almighty, continues on through the tribulation. The battle rages through the tribulation. This is the baptism of fire. It began when Satan was seen falling from Heaven. It is not the Body of Christ that has many heads, it the body of the Beast. But the Beast has far more heads than just the churches. Brother Camping teaches that we must come out of the church, but to what? Christ's Church must be of one mind in order to give life to the body. Christ lamented upon entering Jerusalem, at the Passover, that we were not ready for Him that we might be spared all this. You have often heard it said that the Kingdom of God is at hand. This was true from the first day it was uttered. But without a body how can the arm reach and the hand grab hold?

There are those who teach that the "Elect" will be lifted up to Heaven before the destruction comes to the world, but the destruction has been going on for two thousand years. But I tell you that there will be two men in a bed who hear these words and one of them will see. And when he sees his spirit will be changed and his angel will be lifted up and he will seek the Lord. That, which is his forlorn spirit, that lost its innocence in a world controlled by Satan, will see the light of the truth. With the faith of a child he will put aside his cynicism and dare to believe that change is possible. He will be filled with the light of the truth and the body of Christ will once again live in him and in many others. Here in America, where the eagles are gathered, the word will go out on a cloud and give rise to the body. Two women will be setting together and one will believe and become part of the Body of Christ in this, the first resurrection, while another will not. So that the Body of Christ will not be here or there, but it will flash across the land like lightning. The Saints of Christ's church, who have had no head to guide them, will find their head restored. And the waters of life will flow east from the temple, rising as they go until they cover the whole world.

Hear me, lest you think I have nothing with which to back my claim. For, the body of Christ has been dead since it was divided nearly 2000 years ago and as a day is like a thousand years to God and since He raised His only son from the dead after two days, surely you must understand. God gave us seven days in the week. He gave Noah seven souls along with his own to rebuild the world so that the total was eight. Abraham gave one of his fighting men seven sheep in order that the man would bear witness that it was Abraham that dug Abraham's well. Because it was Jacob who was Abraham's heir, I take liberty to assume that it was the same well at which Jesus told the Samaritan woman of the waters of life. Moses gave Israel the Law that included Abraham's covenant of circumcision.

Some scholars are unsure about the number of the Beast, but most of us have heard that it is 666. The oldest human bone ever found was about three and a half million years old until just this last few years, when they found a bone in a valley in Africa referred to by the people of the region as the birthplace of man. It was six million years old. That is one year for each of those sons and daughters of The Twelve Tribes of Israel said to have perished in the Holocaust. The Jewish record is now nearly six thousand years old: and do not quibble that it is a few hundred years short, for Christ was not crucified at midnight. Six is the number of days in the week that are not kept holy by the word of God. Six are the days that God labored before He rested and He has said by his word that He would give the world as a footstool to His Son. His Son has promised that He will reign for a thousand years after the first resurrection before the earth passes away. This day is the seventh and it is kept holy. But remember, a thousand years can be like a day to God, so take heed. When that day is come, and has passed, the flesh which enters flesh in order to bring forth the generations, will be cut off. For, seven are the days of the week and on the eighth day the law passed down to Moses decreed that the flesh would be cut off, and the seven days, which are represented by the seven lamp stands of the day and the seven stars of the night, bear witness that the One True Living God who lives for ever and ever is He who dug the well from which the waters of life flow.

Can you now see? Will Jesus Christ anoint leaders of churches? Will you travel to see Him give you the royal wave and seek audience with Him? So it is, that the Jews were not wrong in their anticipation of a political solution, they were just impatient. They sought a military leader and rejected the Prince of Peace and the power of love, forgiveness and tolerance. The Prophets spoke of a book that would bring change. If I am right and true in what I have suggested to you thus far, then it was I who put the words of that very book to paper. Who I am you must decide for yourselves. But I can tell you that I played when I was young and I believed in God but I did not know Him. And when I was older I went after the things of this world. And when I saw the world for what it was, it was late. Still, when I knocked and the door was opened, not for my sake but because I asked for the sake of the children. So He gave me the bread of life: the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit. And because I feared God and because I humbled myself before the Lord, I was shown what I have shared with you. These things were shown to me little by little and bit by bit. For seven years with my wife and for seven more now since she left, I have traveled this road. In the wake of 9/11 I stood at the edge of the sea with the Golden Gate at my back and called out. Last year I stood in the heart of this land [in a place called Harlan] and called out that these were the days in which the mysteries of God would be revealed. I have placed the corner stones [there were forty] of the church of our Lord Jesus Christ that we may be of one mind and one Spirit. I have acted as the angel of the church and Jesus Christ is its head and I do battle with Satan in the spirit found in me until the body of Christ is resurrected and if all that I have said is right and true then I bring a message of peace to come: to call home the children of God from all the nations: to make straight the path of the Lord and to show the world a high-way that will lead them to Him who is Israel and who lives in Jerusalem, which means “City of Peace”.

Some time ago, I left a copy of the book of which I speak at the offices of Brother Camping, along with a letter, asking him to help me: to act as Aaron on my behalf. The time had not yet come, and because I never heard from him, I will assume that he does not know the book. It is free to any who would seek it out. It can be found at the web site “www.revolutionnumberten.com.” The original work is now three books, along with a study guide. The original book itself can be found in paperback on the Internet for a price. But before I leave you, I will give you something of this world, something more substantial and concrete, by which to judge.

Somewhere back around 1992, I happened upon a book entitled “Secrets of the Temple” by William Greider. After reading it I had an epiphany that would become the lynch pin of the work I have done. In the summer of 2003 I was in San Diego, California, when I happened onto a portion of a local cable broadcast of “The Money Masters”. It confirms what was revealed to me. You can find it for sale on the Internet. Hopefully, Brother Camping will use his resources to share it with you. This is neither my film nor my cause. If we are in fact a free and Democratic People, then with a little work you should be able to bring the facts of “The Money Masters” to the attention of your peers and your patrons, who should in turn be able to cause your local paper and its organizational fellows to bring these truths to light. The process should find the discussion move to local television, to PBS and to National coverage in time to make this the quintessential election year issue. But if it is ignored, then you will have to consider the possibility that things are not as they appear. You will have to appreciate that this video is seven years in the world and yet your Free Press has never shared the story with you.

The makers of “The Money Masters” assumed that a great depression would bring about the financial collapse and enslavement of our people and of the world. But that is not necessarily the correct assessment. On the PBS program, “The McGaughlin Group” an economist stated that the war in Iraq will contribute to raising the National debt to something like 6.7 Trillion and that the real debt that it will ultimately generate through the medical and retirement costs paid out to compensate those who served in the military, will be in the neighborhood of 30 Trillion Dollars [or $100,000.00 per US citizen]. Once you have seen the truth of the documentary’s understanding, you will have to reconsider whether, or not, we have already been indentured by the war and the fleecing of the stock market: regardless of whether a depression follows or does not.

I heard a man explain the forces at work in bringing about the war, not as a conspiracy, but as a “Convergence” of self-interests. If the quotations in “The Money Masters” are correct as they relate to the Bank of England and its motivations to control the American Colonies lest they set a bad example in their prosperity; then it is not unreasonable to assume that an Islamic State that becomes rich from its oil reserves represents a similar threat when it adheres to the teaching of the Old Testament [Ezekiel 18] forbidding the collection of interest and begins to make that money available to a billion Muslims world wide. Better then, to keep the Middle East in turmoil and the profits from its oil spent on arms and, or, war reparations. Oil Interests converge from another direction and Tyrannical Political and Fanatical Religious interests [Muslim, Christian and Jewish alike] from another still. In fact, the book “Revolution Number Ten” was not intended to be a religious book but rather a “Blueprint For Change” and it turns out to be a study of the remaining “Converging Interests” and how they all serve the one.

If this nation of ours can use our press and our political institutions to free our people and the world from the yoke of the Money Masters then there is no need to fear for the future. But if we cannot, then it must be acknowledged that their power over us is complete and that those who killed and were killed were used, not to free Iraq, but to enslave both sides. Rational people must then concede that we have been engaged in a war, that like the Drug War instituted by George Bush Sr., can never be won, and can therefore, never be put to rest. It must be admitted that We are not the Masters of our own fate, but that they are our Masters. It then becomes a question of faith. It then falls to us to acknowledge that these converging interests are, IN FACT, the many heads of the Beast. Furthermore, to acknowledge that all serve the one and the one serves the Evil One, the Great Satan, and so we see the wisdom and the wonder of God’s plan. We see that Ishmael is raised up to serve God in His fight with the Beast. But Ishmael’s glory is in keeping the laws of God. Fore the Koran called Jesus a true prophet and Jesus taught that no wives are taken in Heaven, and the Body of Christ Jesus is about to rise and show the world the power of love. By any other means men are lead astray by the great deceiver to serve the Beast. So that those who preach hate and violence and vengeance, diminish the power of Ishmael’s nation, which God has lifted up to do the work of God as He said He would: as He prepares to make a footstool of this world for His beloved Son whom Muhammad denied. There is only One who can defeat the evil one. I attempt to serve my Master whose name is Jesus the true Christ. I have made you promises publicly, and before God, that I will keep if you would but seek the truth as I did. The rest is on your head.

You will find more than one reference to Brother Camping in my writings. Among them is an assessment I once made that Brother Camping spoke of himself as if he were one of the elect. This is a statement that no one dare make, and you will find him admonished for it within my work. But, I heard him teaching some time later and it seemed to me that it was possible that I had misjudged what he had meant to say on the previous occasion. I tell you this because, if I was wrong, I would like to apologize here before you all for Brother Camping's sake and for my own. More, importantly, I would like to use this as an example to demonstrate that I am often wrong. The Lord does not speak to me, but He puts things in my path, and because I am looking I take note. I look, therefore I see, and often I understand, but not always right away. I am human and frail. But I do the work, as I understand it, as best I can. In this case I did the work when I delivered a copy of the book to Brother Camping's offices, not by enlisting him, but by laying a foundation for this letter. And so it is that nothing is required of you that you cannot do, but if you are willing to try for the sake of the Lord, then a way will oft times be shown to you that is unexpected and you will do greater things than you ever imagined you could. So you see, we have returned to the "Spirit".

The food you eat in this world today is gathered by the oppressed. The house you live in was purchased at interest. The clothes you wear were sewn together by slaves. Your fuel is mingled with blood. Your media is fraudulent, Godless and indoctrinates with the lies of the Harlot. Your press is fed parables and deceit and does not understand the truth. Your institutions tear down families and raise up sodomites. The old enslave the young. The young contract with a corrupt government to kill and be killed in order to gain access. Teachers teach propaganda and weigh down their students with debt. Government steals from one and pays bribes to the other. The world is filled with extortion, deception and abominations before God and the churches teach in parables. And you will say to me, “What can I do, for this is the way of the world?” and I will answer, “This is the corruption of the world that has corrupted the body of Christ.”

Beware; you people who pray for the rapture, that your soul is not required of you while it is mired in corruption. “Fool!”, Christ called you! There is no corruption in Heaven and those corrupted in death shall not enter until the body is resurrected. Likewise, those corrupted in spirit shall not resurrect the body until the spirit is resurrected. Every man shall face the first death. It is the second death, only, that can be avoided. If Jesus had to endure the first death, how is it that you believe you shall be lifted up to Heaven whole? Your better Angels have become mean spirited in this world. Take on a new spirit. The very first “Americans” were very flawed because they came from a world even more difficult than this. But they strove to pattern their spirit after that of He who is the embodiment, and the personification of the Holy Spirit, and from them this nation took its spirit and became great above all others. They dared, with the faith and trust of a child, to believe that they could have a nation of free men under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all: and in their pursuit of that promise they laid the foundation for the opportunity which has presented itself today. This is the gathering of the eagles. No man can serve two masters. Nor can politics be separated from conscience, for if the head is sick the whole body is corrupted. No nation can elect the lesser of two evils without electing evil. No government that is not transparent in the smallest thing can be trusted. No document of a free people can be classified without denying the Samaritan as your neighbor. The result is a press that is as misguided as those who worship parables and forsake the truth. No light exists in the darkness, and in the darkness lives the Spirit about to be cast down to the pit. It is the spirit of Satan himself, the great deceiver. You must choose the spirit in which you will live: the spirit that will live in you.

There are a couple of other places that come to mind with the seven days of week. The crucified body of Jesus was still in the tomb on the Sabbath: the seventh day of the week. It was on the eighth day that He was resurrected. It was on the eighth day that He rose to Heaven to be with the Father. Just as Noah was the eighth who was the Father in the beginning of that Age, so it is that We all go to the Father in the final Age, after the week has ended.

Another time that the numbers six and seven come up is when Rome burned for seven nights and six days. At the time there was a small but growing body of Christians in the Nation of Rome. After it burned for seven star lit lights and six days lit by the lamp of the sun, it was not the power of Rome that was defeated. To the contrary, it was the Christians who were wrongfully accused of setting the fire. This is said to be the reason for the renewed persecution of Christians in Rome, and while people like to say that the Christians ultimately won Rome over to Christianity, it is, sadly, just not true. Ultimately, it would be Cesar, who was called god by his people, who would abdicate the title of god in order to set himself up as intercessor between the members of the Catholic Church and Jesus in order to defeat the Christians. Despite the lack of scriptural basis, Cesar would convince the body of Christ that was growing in Rome to commit suicide. The "Pope" as he now referred to himself, would claim infallibility in the name of God almighty and then begin to war on the world around him. He would kill, and teach to kill in the name of the Lord. He would deny the members of the church access to the Word of God except through the Catholic priesthood. He would hate the Truth to the point of causing Galileo to repent of the truth of God's Design, fore the church did not serve the truth. The Pope's infallibility was left to rest on the notion that the sun revolves around the earth, thereby giving argument against Christianity in service of the great deceiver. But, why did not Christ's Church prevail in the light of the seventh day of Rome's fire? How were the people of the church of Christ so easily turned to the Church of Rome? It is the fact that they were so easily turned that is the key to understanding.

There has been a renewed discussion as of late as to who is to blame for the Crucifixion Jesus. People have argued that it was just those in the Synagogue who feared that they would lose power. But Christ had told lawyers that they were not to circumvent the intent of God's laws with craftiness and deceit. He had told the money people that they were wrong to make gain in the way they did. He told the rich they would almost certainly be denied Heaven. It was only the disenfranchised that liked what they heard. He was teaching that this old idea of breaking God's Law and then paying a fine to the Priests of the Synagogue was no longer the Law. He was teaching "A NEW THING". He was saying that when you fail, a sacrifice was already in place so long as you were REPENTANT. But that meant you had to change. It was no longer acceptable to not try and change. But they didn't want to change. Not those who were franchised. Look around this land of the Eagles today and ask even the elderly poor if they will give up there Social Security Franchise. Will Wall Street play fair? It is only the working poor who have no franchise who seek change. That was the lure of the Church of Rome. They admonished sin for a price or a Hail Mary and then set about to the Crusades and the Inquisition.

This is the problem as old as Man himself. Catholicism feared science for the same reason most religions fear it today: because even those who sincerely seek God are not open to the truth because they have no faith. If science is used to distort the truth, then like anything else, even Churches, it is a bad thing. But Galileo's understanding would lead to Einstein's understanding because it was true. Ultimately, Einstein and Hubble together would unravel enough of the mystery to allow me to share with you how Supernatural Power, God Almighty is His name, and the Big Bang Theory are compatible in Creation. It has allowed me to find our place in the universe. But these discussions are not part of the point that I would like to make here and now. This point has to do with the Science of Genetics.

You see: there is a man, a geneticist, who can show you that we all came from the same place. He can demonstrate that we are all of the same line. He does it with his science. He has calculated the time since mankind divided into two groups to back around 50,000 years ago. I like this number a lot because I can take poetic license with it and change his estimate to 52,000 years. I like this so much because when you employ God's rule of "one equals a thousand", you can get the number of weeks in one single year. That's that seven number, fifty two times, and it brings us back to that small group of peace loving people they called the Bushmen of Africa.

I'm going to tell you a story from the Bible now, but I am going to ask you to consider that it might well be a parable instead. I'm going to remind you of another Biblical character who, like Ishmael, seemed to get a deal from the Lord our God Almighty that didn't seem to hold true to the teachings and the fairness of a just and loving Creator. It is the story Cain and Able. Now, both men were sons of the very first couple, Adam and Eve. Both worked hard and both brought forth an offering to their God. But God favored the blood offering Able made from his herd of sheep, while He had no regard for the offering of grain Cain made from his field. So that, in his jealousy, Cain killed Able and was forced out of Eden. He went east of Eden to begin anew with people who were already there, at a time when all the people of the world were said to be Adam and Eve's Children [which seems another good reason to consider that it might be a parable].

The Bible talks of Original Sin, and the Churches like to make it about sex and the fact that one cannot be conceived without it. I look at Old Soldiers and the way they are regarded in a society. In my generation they went off to war in Vietnam. Some went because they were lured by the myths and legends of other Old Soldiers. Some went kicking and screaming because they had no choice. But all of them came back expecting to be enfranchised for what they had suffered. Some were proud but most were silent. The myths and legends of glory and valor are easier to deal with than the cold realities. Over time, those who use the power of warriors to do their bidding, raise up those who kill for the cause. And like the banker who takes interest and leaves poverty in its place, Old Soldiers do not stop the toast makers to ruin the occasion of their praise with tails of the truth. No one in America can survive without doing business with the Beast. The money you earn is taxed and the taxes buy the weapons and support the Government that enlists the warriors who join most often, because your franchises have disenfranchised them. The union that gives or denies you a job is corrupt. The police enforce unjust laws. So, that except for the Bushmen of Africa, we are all the sons and daughters of Cain. But, to gain the love of our children, we tell them the myths and the legends of our place in society. We tell them we are old. We are a minority. We are infirm. We have been abused. In this way, the sins of the parents are taught to the generations and it is the origin of sin, the original sin. We will not repent of it any more than Cain would. He chose instead to give the cereal offering of the old law, in place of the repented offering of grace in the blood of the lamb. And while it pacifies the anger of God, He has no regard for it. It is the love of one another, and their wide-eyed innocence that personifies the Spirit of the Bushmen to this very Age. This is the Spirit that is pleasing before God. There is no paradox and no unfairness in the judgment of the Lord, but only in your ability to see.

And so God sent His only begotten and beloved Son to us and we killed Him. As Cain killed his brother Able, we killed our brother Jesus. It was not the Jews nor Pilot, but all those who did not want to change. And after the resurrection, the Apostles went out and told the Good News. And a disciple named Stephen, who was wise and full of the Holy Spirit, stood before his accusers and his judges and told the narrative of his people as I have told you this narrative. He told them the story from beginning to end and of Jesus the Christ and how He was betrayed and murdered by them: how they did not keep the law. And, as he spoke, the heavens opened and Christ was looking down from the throne of God. But the people closed their eyes to Him and covered their ears so that they could not hear Him and they took Stephen and stoned him unto death as Saul, who would later become Paul, watched that their coats were not stolen.

People, people, God has told you that he who lives by the sword shall die by the sword. He has told you that He will melt you down like metal in the Baptism of Fire until that which is unwanted is removed. Christ warned you that He came to divide and to smite with the sword. He will raise up armies against anyone who will raise up armies, until those who would kill are killed; until the swords are beat into plow shares. There are those who say that America lacks the will and the resolve to fight a war and I pray that they are right. I pray that the time has come for the Kingdom to come, for the will of God to be done on earth as it is done in Heaven, lest the Reign of Jesus the Christ be as a day rather than a thousand years. Cain was not ready. They were not ready when Paul taught in Rome and so the Sons of Light were taken up to Heaven. The light went out of the world and the sword has smitten to this day with an ever-greater ferociousness. Jesus showed John in Revelations the kind of weaponry we must have before these days would draw away, before we would learn, and the prophecies are now manifest. Famine and disease fill the world also.

God is the Father, and like any good Father He will not stop the punishment so long as the insolence of His child continues. How long will you be punished? Turn and Live.

I want to leave you with this vision. There was "Genocide" in Rwanda in the last decade of the last century. I made reference to it in one of the works I have offered you. It was so under publicized, that when I used the story as a reference to another point I was trying to make, I referred to the peoples involved as the Tutsis and the Masai, when it was really the Hutus and the Tutsis. I even misspelled Tutsi. There is so much to tell and so little time to do the work that you may find many more such wrongs along the way. But for the sake of these people I would tell you that, when the United Nations would not sent troops to guard the Tutsi, they were left to the slaughter. Still, there were those among their U.N.

defenders who stood, unarmed, between men armed and ready to kill, and those who were at risk. The Nations of this world, who speak eloquently of their own humanity, could not or would not stop the slaughter. But these men did, and in a way that gives honor to the power of witness. So, I ask you, "If two men stand facing each other and one stands for the truth and there is no violence in him, and the other stands for violence and there is no truth in him: which of these men must be the more courageous?" Win or lose, live or die, such men are able to offer the blood of the Lamb to God for their sins if they are wise enough knock and ask for forgiveness. In them is found the Spirit of the Valiant. It can be found in children who stand wide eyed and trusting until the myths and legends of their fathers are revealed as lies, and the sin of cynicism in man kills that Spirit and replaces it with one unholy. Fore Jesus is the law, so that, he who does not believe in the law does not believe in Jesus. He who would deny any part of the law, denies Jesus.

Knock and the door will open. Be brave unto death, for this life will pass away, but salvation is forever and ever. Do not sit quietly in anticipation of the tribulation, but instead prepare to bring it to an end as the strong arm of the body of Christ. Turn and live. Be valiant in the Lord, in this, the first resurrection.

The Value of a Name

This piece originally began with the story of two events. The common thread between the two was that they both had to do with situations in which I had gone to the judicial branch of our local government seeking justice. In both cases it was not money that I sought. In both cases I had declined my right to hire an attorney for the purpose of attacking parties I felt to be in the wrong. In both cases I felt undermined by the system.

The piece I submitted was called "The Value of a Name". It was, in the end, about the value of my good name. When I took my story to the Harlan newspaper and I found them too fearful of legal repercussions to print what I had to say, even if I purchased space and ran it as an ad. For all the Newspaper's trepidation about my comments on local history, they never batted an eye at the elephant in the room that was the rest of the article. It seems a strange paradox. Never the less I am grateful for the opportunity to resubmit that portion to you now.

And so, I will give you some idea of the value of my name and I will let you be the judge. I will leave it to you to assess if I am a man of character, and further, to evaluate how much is lost if that character is defamed.

By 1943, World War Two had engulfed these United States. My Grandfather was forty-five and had four children. Down in Oskland Iowa the draft board drafted him anyway. He was a Jehovah's Witness and so they forced him to choose. He chose his Faith and the reticule that came with it. Sometime after the war he moved his family to Harlan. My mother recalls that he was treated fairly here. As for my memories of Harlan, I remember playing in its streets and in the yard of my Grandparents just a few blocks from the courthouse. I also remember going with my Grandparents to give witness, door to door, in this very community. I remember standing outside of farmhouses and seeing nothing but darkness through the screen doors as we stood in the bright summer sun. My Grandparents would introduce themselves and explain why they had come. I remember gruff and sometimes angry voices from the darkness and always my Grandparents were kind and calm and understanding. They were doing the work as they understood it and while I myself have never been a Jehovah's Witness, at a tender age I became a witness for Jehovah.

Forty-some years later, I am a writer, among other things. The world is full of writers. Some are men of character and some are not. At one end of that spectrum are those who fabricate the truth and cheat their fellow man. At the other end of the spectrum, is he to whom the prophets said would be given "the words of a book": Isaiah 29:18. I have reason to believe that I am that man, and that the revised edition of a book entitled "Revolution Number Ten", which has become a collection of three books, is that book of which the prophet spoke. It was written under the pen name of George Bailey. I had always hoped to remain anonymous, but that is not my fate. If you doubt that such a work is yet to enter the world, I would refer you to Isaiah verse 6. You will see that the lips of the prophet are sealed from revealing those things his lips speak. So that it will be "precept upon precept, precept upon precept, line upon line, line upon line, here a little, there a little. Nay, but by men of strange lips and with an alien tongue the Lord will speak to this people." Isaiah verse 28 lines 10 & 11.

It is no accident that I came here to this town, in this county, in this day. I have tried repeatedly to lay down this burden. It's not something I volunteered for. I had even written my friend in the very letters that caused the chain of events that took us to court, that the time had come for me to lay it down. But their actions would bring the tempest that would place me once again at the center of the storm. I do the work as I understand it. I was given to understand that circumstances would cause me to have to clear my name. With that understanding I was given to see what had been hidden under my nose for a dozen years and on Thank Giving night in the year of our Lord 2002 it was revealed to me what I must do before I am finished.

Today, I come before you, allegorically, with my right hand lifted up to heaven and swear by him who lives for ever and ever, who created heaven and what is in it, the earth and what is in it, and the sea and what is in it, that there should be no more delay, but that in the days of the trumpet call to be sounded by the seventh angel, the mystery of God, as he announced to his servants the prophets, should be fulfilled.

If you will allow me to, I will share with you a Unifying Theory of the Universe that brings together God and Creation and The Big Bang Theory using the science of a man named Einstein. I will pinpoint for you the location of our galaxy in the universe using the observations of a man by the name of Hubble. I will explain our monetary system and the lies surrounding it and give you a model for a new one which is based in Christian ethics. Moreover, I will show you how God has prepared the way for it. I will reveal to you what I believe to be the Mark of the Beast that John referred to in the Book of Revelations. I will describe for you what I believe to be the beast. I will share with you what I believe to be the wisdom you will need to see the beast. I will lead you to what I believe to be a copy of the "Scroll with the seven seals" that John described in The Book of Revelations, and I will justify my claim that I have every reason to believe that "Revolution Number Ten" is the book to which Isaiah referred. I will give you an explanation of the mysteries of God, as he announced to His servants the prophets. I will give you a solution to the health care crisis. I will explain to you how to wean the world from oil, from war and from poverty. I will show you a plan that will put every working family in this country into a home of their own, how to control the pollution of industry, how to reign in insurance companies and guarantee a fair wage, and take care of the children and the elderly; all using Capitalistic principles. I will show you how you are at variance with your God. If I fail to do these things then you will know me for a fraud and my good name will be forfeit.

I cannot tell you how this story ends. Like the court, it is you who will decide, not I. But because you have been a friend to me and to those who stood by their faith before me, I pray God give you wisdom. The State University where my daughter attends will allow students to reference any book in print or any subject matter placed on the Internet when they write a paper, but they will not allow references from the Bible. They state that the Bible cannot be proven. It is through the fulfillment of prophecy that the Bible is proven. If given the chance, I will give you the circumstantial evidence necessary to prove to a world desperate for God, that the Bible is the true Book of the One and Only Living God.

Many years ago I set out in search of justice and the search led me to God. If allowed, I will give evidence of all that I know. But I will not allow for any more delay in the revealing of the truth. It was my right as an American citizen to my day in court. Now I come to you for my jury. A week ago, last Monday morning, when the clock ticked off the third second of the third minute of the third hour, it fell on the third day of the third month of the third year of the third Millennium. If you find my work delusional then I will be able to lay it down without guilt and go quietly on with my life somewhere far removed from here. If you find that I am a victim of a great hoax, played upon me by chance or some cruel cosmic force, then we will be safe to ignore what I have to say. But if I represent, who the evidence leads me to believe I represent, then my burden is not lifted until I share these things with you lest you stumble and it be counted on my head.

I will leave CD copies of "Revolution Number Ten" with the folks at the public library if I can, in the hope that those of you who would read it, need not spend money as well as time. Please feel free to make copies and pass them on. I also hope to have it on the WEB at www.revolutionnumberten.com by the weekend. With luck, it won't be long before the three works are incorporated into one and replace the original book offered in print at 1st Books.com.

To the Members of the Kingdom Hall in Harlan,

When Abram, who would become Abraham, was instructed by the Lord to follow the Lord to a new land, Abram obeyed. And when his nephew was taken captive, Abram gathered his house together and fought to retrieve him. And when the Lord told Abraham, in his old age, that the Lord would give him heirs that numbered as the stars, Abraham believed. And for his belief, that the Lord would do what He had said He would do: Abraham's "BELIEF" was reckoned unto him as righteousness.

But you, where is your faith? Will you be moved when the Lord sends his messenger to you? Will you go forth and free your brother and his son who are held captive? Or will you say, "This is no messenger." And while I have been so bold as to suggest myself to be the recipient of the answers to the Mysteries of God, have you proclaimed yourselves able to read men's minds and know the content of their hearts?

Abraham was bound by the covenant of circumcision only. So that, when he allowed his first born (Ishmael) and Ishmael's mother Hagar, to be cast away on account of Sarah his wife, it was not held against him. When he deceived authority and committed Sarah into adultery, it was not reckoned against him. But when he vowed by the Lord God not to take anything that was of the King of Sodom's, Abraham kept his vow and the credit was to God, and God was with him.

But you, your covenant is not the covenant of circumcision. You are bound by the Laws of Moses. You who call yourselves "Witness" have entered by grace and grace alone. Do you think therefore, that your belief is reckoned to you as righteousness as well? When Satan believes as you do, that there is a Christ and that Jesus is his name, is that the faith you set your hopes on; that will be reckoned as righteousness? Paul wrote to the Romans, "Do we then overthrow the law by this faith? On the contrary, we uphold the law." and James is against you as well.

When I came to you, who proclaim that you are “Awake”, that you man the “Watch Tower”, did you look? Did you inquire to see if I told the truth? Do you assist me in proclaiming the coming of the Lord? You did not. So it was the Lord who guided me to the conformation I sought from you. Therefore, know that this war in Iraq is on your heads. Know that you bear the burden of the dead on both sides and the lives of the innocents lost.

James taught that without works your faith is empty. Abraham demonstrated that faith in God to do the impossible is a righteous act. God demonstrated that the Bible is an acting out of what was, what is, and what will be, when He told Moses that Moses would act the part of God before Pharaoh and Aaron would act as Moses. Listen to me closely and I will share with you now the rest of the Mysteries Of God, which have been revealed to me since I last wrote you.

It begins with a belief that if a plan to change the world where in place, that the world would find need of it, and my belief was reckoned unto me as righteousness. I believe this because when I step through a doorway in faith, another is opened before me. I know this by faith. All this was predicated on a vow made to the Lord that a tenth of all I owned would be given to charity and that vow kept. It was sanctified when I feared the Lord and prayed: not to be given anything, but rather that I not offend Him, the Lord God, in my endeavors. And so, I read the King James Version of the Bible as a narrative, in the same way that the word of God has been read by God’s design since the beginning. I did the work and followed God and not the world, and when you would not verify me, the Lord gave me sight that I might verify myself.

I now use a Revised Standard Version of the Bible, Copyright 1962, by The World Publishing Company, because it was given into my hand and also for reasons explained in it’s preface. I am told it is no longer in print but can be found as text on the Internet. This seems appropriate, as this is a worldwide event. And because this is the end of the Age, and because Christ told you that the first shall be last, let us look to the Old Testament, beginning with Genesis.

The story of Adam and Eve is another narrative that is a parable as well. It is the story of the “Ten Commandments” and the attempt of people in power to remove them from public places in America in these very days, for they are acknowledged in the first line of the Declaration Of Independence, as the justification of our right to be called equals. We see the Feminists, who would destroy the world before they would submit to anyone or anything: and we see men who have adopted the same mindset.

The ingenuity of human kind, undivided, and without the fear of God and the Laws of God to guide it, will put an end to the world; and so the Tower of Babel tells the story of how we were diverted until we submit to God.

Then the Lord said, “Behold, the man has become like one of us, knowing good from evil; and now, lest he put forth his hand and take also of the tree of life, and eat, and live forever”-. But God does not reveal Himself as to His plan. For the Laws of God are the Laws of Heaven and only those who submit can enter without corrupting Heaven itself. Therefore, though Eve did not die from eating the fruit, she faced the second death at judgment. This is the immortality that Adam and Eve lost.

There were two sons given to Abraham who were to build up great nations with great Mosques and Synagogues. The third son of that line to be raised in a similar fashion would be far greater and would see great churches built in His name to the One True Living God. His name was, of course, Jesus. From the third son of Adam and Eve, who was Seth, comes eight generations of men who end with Lamich, who represents the eighth day and the end of all things. Lamich will father Noah and die at the age of 777: and all of the sons of those generations and their daughters will perish in the earth’s Baptism of Water, with the exception of Noah and his seven.

Noah was a man of the world found blameless in his generation and who found favor in the eyes of the Lord. His life had run its course to six hundred years before the world was brought to an end, (this is the 600 of “666”), and he was seven days in the Ark before the waters of the flood came upon the earth and destroyed the earth with water. This represents the seven days of man on earth, which is mankind’s ark. “And the waters prevailed upon the earth a hundred and fifty days”. This is the first “time and a half time”. Four thousand years of the Jews to the Crucifixion and two thousand years of Christianity is the second. Two thousand years of the Tribulation and one thousand years of Christ’s reign on earth is the third. It was the seventh month in which the Ark found rest. The tenth month, (the number of the law), revealed the mountaintops, (the rock).

The raven is the wisest in the world of birds in its cunning and would find no rest until the earth was revealed. The dove found no place to set her foot when she was first sent out. So that the raven (who is wise in the world) represents the Jewish people who have not found a place to rest until the Age of Peace is come. The dove is the Church of Christ that is sent out at the Crucifixion. At the end of seven days, which represents a total time, (a time now coming to an end), the dove was sent out again and returned with the olive leaf of peace. But at the end of another time the dove will not return again. For, as the floods came after seven days, after these seven days are ended, it will be fire that comes upon the earth. Fire to cleanse evil, and I take it that this evil is the nakedness that Noah revealed to his son in his drunkenness. Evil he knew as one of the “Mighty Men”, and which Ham reckoned as nakedness just as Adam and Eve had known nakedness.

So man was given charge over every living thing: but its life’s blood man was forbidden, and here lies the difference between genetic husbandry and genetic splicing. God also promised a reckoning of all blood, so that “Whoever sheds the blood of a man, by man shall his blood be shed: for God made man in His own image.”

And so, the covenant was established between God and men that He would never again destroy the earth with water. And the sign that was given was the bow in the clouds, referred to elsewhere as the arch of the bow that comes after the rain. It is in the bow that I am justified. I have sent into the world the 60 which are sealed, and they are the 60 of the 6 billion who now inhabit the planet, the 6 million years of man, the 6th millennia of Judaism, the 6 hundred years of Noah and the 6 days of the week that have transpired in preparation for this day. They are the days of the Beast whose days are at an end and who is about to be defeated. And if you are still bristling at the notion that the Jewish record is not a full 6,000 years old, I will share with you news I heard only just recently. That news concerns the early astronomers in ancient days, who sought to count the very stars which were to number the offspring of Abraham, and that number was reckoned by their naked eyes at just over 6,000.

Jude knew. Paul boasted of having heard in a vision. Isaiah and Ezekiel told you. Before I knew what has been given to me, I proclaimed that to be the least would be more than I could hope for and so I have been called the least.

“Many are called but few are chosen.” But how is it that God would call, and upon your arrival He would then choose some and reject others? Those who answer the call are surely given grace. But you, you generation of this hour, you are chosen as Abraham was chosen to be tested and to act lest no righteous men be found and you destroyed like Sodom. Will you offer up your sons to God who will spare them, or to Satan who will slay them and see them suffer the second death as well. Between men and Eden, where God is the Law and no other would attempt to be as God, stand the Cherubim and a flaming sword, and they are charged to keep you out of Paradise until you are not naked before God. Until you submit to the fact that He alone is God and deny your will to be as gods discerning good from evil and rationalizing your inequities.

The Lord promised that the descendents of Abraham would live in the land promised to the descendents of Abraham and Isaac and Jacob. But, that promise was fulfilled, and that covenant broken by their descendents. It is equally important to remember that the descendent of Ishmael did not cease to be descendent of Abraham. Rather Isaac and Jacob were given birthright over their older brothers as a sign that The Christ, who is Israel, should be given birth right over the Israel that was held captive by Pharaoh, God's "First Born Son". For Christ Jesus was the third of Heaven and there is a fourth, "if you will believe."

God parted the Red Sea and Pharaoh drove Israel ahead of his army through it. Joshua parted the Jordan and passed Israel through to take possession of the Promised Land. But Christ called upon His followers to walk across the water by faith. "You were sold for nothing and for nothing shall you be redeemed." That is to say, you have strayed of your own free will, and by an offering of your own free will, not works of might by the Lord, will you return or perish.

Jacob saw the Angels ascending and descending from Heaven in a dream. In the dream they traveled up and down on a ladder. After the dream he made a covenant with God. Soon after he came to the land of his uncle Laban, where the flocks waited to be watered. And though it was midday and they should have been grazing in the pasture, the flocks waited. For, as the stone was removed from the tomb of Christ before He ascended to Heaven, the stone was removed from the well that the sheep might drink; but none could drink until all the flocks were gathered. Though the three shepherds were gathered, they awaited the "bride to be" before the waters that give life were allowed to flow.

Jacob would labor for seven years for his first wife, Leah. Seven represents a total number. It is the number of the Age and half the number of the generations between Abraham and David. But Leah was not the one Jacob most desired. So he labored seven more years for his love, Rachel, (an Age and half the number of the generations between David and the carrying away into Babylon). Then he labored six more years and in the next year he took his freedom (a total of seven which is the number of an age and half the number of the generations between the carrying off to Babylon and the Christ). So that Laban, the father of Leah, the firstborn and also of Rachel the second born, represents the men of the Synagogues and of the Churches. Leah and her maidservant bore Jacob children: and as Leah's eyes were weak, so too were the eyes of her children in Jesus, so that they could not see Him as the Christ. So that the children of Leah and her maidservant represent the Hebrew Nation of the line of Isaac. Therefore, Jacob's ladder, upon which the Angels descended and ascended Heaven, represents Jesus, upon whom the Angels ascend and descend. Jacob would stay with Leah for a week, seven days of an Age, before he would take Rachel as his wife and Rachel would be barren until Leah had born all her sons.

Rachel was beloved by Jacob and therefore her children, who included Joseph, and the children of her handmaiden represent the Christians born of the churches: his beloved, who died in childbirth; who would not leave behind her father's household idles.

The six years Jacob served for his hire represents the six days of God's week which are not kept holy: the sixes of the reign of the Great Deceiver on earth, during which time the imperfect sheep were gathered by the Good Shepherd. No matter the limits set by the corrupted Laban, and no matter his treacheries, God provided blemished sheep for the Shepherd in metaphor for the Christ to come, who is given the power by the Crucifixion to clean away blemishes.

The three flocks, that awaited the coming of the bride to be, can be interpreted as the Father, the Son and the Holy Spirit. Or they could be interpreted as the flocks of Christianity, Judaism and Islam. It is also possible that they represent both. So that the twelve sons of Jacob are taken back to the land of Isaac, and Jacob comes meekly and is reconciled by the offerings made to Esua, who is the first born that was disenfranchised by the second, and who has taken to himself a wife from the Ishmaelites. So that this is the reconciliation and the method therefore, of the Jewish Peoples and the Islamic Peoples. This is the journey in which Jacob wrestled with God and with man and did not fail, so that he was given the name by which he was called: Israel, “who prevails with God”.

These twelve also represent the total number of the men of the old world. Just as the men of the old world in Europe dealt corruptly with the dreamers of that world, so was the dreamer Joseph sold into bondage to Pharaoh. These are the sons of Rachel, the second and beloved wife, whose sons are representative of the prodigy of Christianity. So that, all the disenfranchised dreamers of Christendom would find their way to the new world in the Americas to serve the powers that were as Pharaoh. The power of the new world that would commit genocide on the native peoples and enslave the Africans on the new continent, would allow the Josephs from Europe and the old world to run their affairs and prosper. And, though the disenfranchised were mistreated in the land of their birth, by their own brethren, they would not lose affection for their fathers and their brethren who had treated them thus. What’s more, they would become a nation of brothers wrapped in the garment of their brotherhood, a coat of many colors which the men of the Old World could only envy. So that the whole world would be gathered together under the power of Pharaoh until all the wealth of the world would be owned by him. In time, the works done by Joseph and the “seventy” (which is the other number for the Apostles sent out by Jesus) and their offspring would be forgotten. The Egyptians, who despised those who kept herds and flocks, would become harsh taskmasters. They would take the lives of their male children. They would oppress them in every manner until God sent them Moses.

It is those who do not keep the Law that despise the Shepherd. Ishmael, who would become an expert with a “Bow” (a metaphor for the sign of the covenant) stands alone against the head of the Beast which all of us are forced to serve. So that, as Joseph would have perished at his brothers hands had the Ishmaelites not given them an opportunity to profit in their deceit and, in so doing, turned the tide: so too would our fate have been quietly sealed had power not courted the Middle East for profit.

The Bible is a body of work compiled under the Divine Supervision of God, which is why John warned in Revelations that anyone who added or detracted from its words would be punished. It is a great riddle, a mystery that is altered when people attempt to make the narrative easier to read or the lessons more “Politically Correct”. Like all the bodies that God has assembled, there is little that is not needed in order for the whole to work. So that, even anecdotal stories, are often more subtle than we are prepared for. In addition, the key to understanding lies in the description of the House of the Father as given to prophets in visions, for the house of the Lord has three stories.

Therefore, when you read of Joshua, and the one who stood before him prior to the battle of Jericho, you should recognize that the “Commander of the Armies of the Lord”, reveals to you God’s strategy against Satan. For six days God walks before him, followed by His people, Israel, and on the seventh day a shout goes up from the multitude and the walls behind which evil hides fall down: the walls of the Churches, the Mosques and the Synagogues among them.

Likewise, the story of Tamar is a story that may find a metaphor in the way in which the people of Israel lost sight of the Laws of God and played the Harlot and became two nations, Israel and Judah. But it has other implications as well.

If one is able to be open minded and observant in America today and look beyond the “Politically Correct”, it is not difficult to see who is the objective targeted by advertisers in the market place today. The reason that so much attention is focused on women is two fold. The first is that they have a lot more discretionary spending money than men. The second is the fact, proven in Psychological Studies, that women are more likely to submit to authority than men. They are three times as likely to do as they are told, regardless of its affect on others. I would suggest therefore, that they are three times more likely to submit to the propaganda of the politically correct. So that when my generation, (the first husbands of Tamar) turned their back on religion, they were taken away as husbands. They presumed to change the world by committee and without the help or the Laws of God. They became dead in God. The result is reflected in the divorce rate, and one of the saddest implications of the era was the notion that Motherhood was not a valid occupation. The idea, that making a home was not a job worthy of women, took hold. Tamar committed “Harlotry” in order to gain her “hire”, her place in society through Motherhood, but our society has no such place. It has been reckoned by power as worthless.

The second son to “lay” with Tamar wasted his semen on the ground as so many do to the women they “go into” today. This is to say that “casual sex” is the metaphorical equivalent of the second son and AIDS, (and the like) is its manifestation.

The third son would not be obligated any more than the second and this is metaphor for the way in which men have put their wives to work at the expense of their children in order to accumulate the trappings of this world, and gave no value to Motherhood. So that, because women were told by their husbands and by those who grew rich and powerful in this Harlotry, that they had no hire, no value, in Motherhood, their natural willingness to follow set them on the path of destruction.

The father is the generation who prospered as a result of all this, and therefore allowed it to happen that Tamar would find it necessary to prostitute herself in order to gain her wages. Those who seek to lead us astray have used this difference between the genders to sing a Siren’s song to the nation and the world as a whole. The Harlotries of our people toward God are the manifestations of the parable of the Harlot in Christ’s Revelations given John.

The story of Achan is another that finds a “second story” in the parable with which I began my letter to Mr. Camping. Achan took a mantle and silver and gold (the “devoted” things of God), from the battle of Jericho and buried them. In Christ’s parable, the servant buries the treasure given to him because he is fearful.

So, what is this metaphorical treasure? What is “devoted” to God? God has given us everything of earth as our own and held nothing back except the life’s blood of animals (which we have tampered with), men’s blood (which we still shed), and His “Mysteries”. His Son has been given, as possession, the peoples of the earth over which to reign and has required of us that we “suffer the little children unto Him”.

Fourteen years ago I began writing a book to free the children, and while I would not know it until recently, I believe that it was reckoned unto me as righteousness by God, who has known the story from the beginning. His time is not as we understand time. His knowledge is not like our knowledge. It was my place to offer to share with you those mysteries of God, which He had revealed to me in 2002. So I went to your newspaper with the story of an injustice in your courts and another story of injustice in your law enforcement, and your newspaper contributed by denying me my right to speak freely and openly in the land of the free. So that I was contented by sharing with you the news that the days of waiting were over and that the time had come for the Mysteries of God to be revealed, but you did not listen. I delivered my submission to the newspaper on the date 3/3/03 as seemed correct to me to do, but the newspaper delayed my publishing, so that it was the Lord who set the date of my publication at 3/11/03. That would be one year to the day before the bombings in Spain, which came 911 days from the fall of the towers. 3/11/03, which was 18 months to the day from 9/11/01: a time and a half time.

God gave us this great land of freedom without kings so that we could live by the Law rather than by the decrees of unjust men. But you have hid in your churches and your meeting halls and studied on parables as your laws were perverted into the Harlotries of the Age. You have paid lip service to the Lord while his children are held as slaves in other lands to provide you with cheap goods: while your government slaughters them in their beds and on their playgrounds with bombs that you built and delivered with missiles (the power to do harm comes from their tails). You parade before the Lord in your piety while you fill your own children with the violent aggression of your sports and its “Idles”: Hollywood and its violence and sex and its “Idles”. You feed them “Junk Food” instead of the Law, so that they are vulnerable to the “Cult” teachings of the male prostitutes and it is all wormwood that they are fed.

These are the truths and understandings which testify as confirmation of the Mysteries revealed to me: the Mysteries I have delivered to you this day as the fulfillment of the prophecies of my Lord and Master Jesus, the true Christ, Son of God. Like the twins of Tamar, one of you will wear a red string around your wrist and cause a breach in the birth of a new Age and the other will come out first. But like Achan and the servant in Christ’s parable, if you bury this treasure with which you have been entrusted this day, woe to you and yours, for it belongs to God and to His chosen.

As John the Baptist warned, the Christ has come with His Baptism of Fire. One interpretation of Matthew 11:12 is “From the days of John the Baptist until now the Kingdom of Heaven has been coming violently and men of violence take it by force,” meaning, it will be forced upon those who will not accept it.

As for those who await the “Rapture”, in Matthew 13, the parable of the weeds sown in amongst the wheat makes it perfectly clear that the weeds will be gathered first and burned before the wheat harvest begins. For Jesus said, “Just as the weeds are gathered and burned with fire, so will it be at the close of the Age.”

“Woe to you Scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! For you tithe mint and dill, and cumin, and have neglected the weightier matters of the Law, Justice and Mercy and Faith; these you ought to have done without neglecting the others.”

“For I tell you, you will not see me again, until you say, ‘Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.’”

Is not Jesus the Lord of the Sabbath, the seventh day? Matthew and Mark agree that six days after describing the coming of the Kingdom of God, Jesus took Peter and James and John up a mountain and was transfigured before them and both Elijah and Moses appeared before Him. What other events in His life are measured except the 40 days in the wilderness, and the three before He rose? And still you do not see.

It is the recurring theme. The holy garments of the priest are worn for seven days of the ordination, atonement and consecration. Just so, the human body is the garment to cover the soul. But on the eighth day, the holy garment is removed.

For seven days the first born of the oxen and the sheep remained with their mother and on the eighth day they were given to God.

When Moses went up to Mount Sinai a cloud covered it for six days and on the seventh God spoke to Moses. Moses prophesied of things to come, even to these days, when he bid his people farewell in Deuteronomy 4:25-31. He told them in Deuteronomy 15, that at the end of seven years, all debt should be forgiven. He taught that after six years of slavery ones brother should be set free on the seventh, and not empty handed. Six and a seventh are the days of the "Passover". Seven are the weeks that measure to the Feast of Weeks at the harvest. Seven are the days of the feast of Booths, a booth being a place of shelter.

For all the days of the Passover they eat unleaven bread. It is called "the bread of affliction". They work during the Passover, but on the seventh day it is the Sabbath and they do not work. I perceive that the metaphor of the unleaven bread is as simple as to say that it is without the air holes made by the leaven. That is to say, therefore, that it is not holy. It is, as Christ taught, not sufficient to sustain life in God. So that, for six days they eat the bread which does not sustain, but on the seventh day, the Sabbath, Christ brings the Holy portion to the feast, until the end of the feast, for He is the Lord of the Sabbath, to the end of the Age: the harvest measuring seven weeks.

Just as the bones of the sacrificial lamb of the Passover may not be broken, so was Christ Jesus sacrificed without His bones being broken. This, even though those who were crucified beside Him had their legs broken when they were taken down. It is all parable. It is all metaphor. It is a signpost. It is one story built upon another that you may see and understand.

David stood before the Philistine Army and proclaimed “that all the earth should know that there is a God in Israel, and that all this assembly may know that the Lord saves not with a sword or a spear: for this battle is the Lord’s and He will give you into our hand.”

Israel means those who prevail with God, and it was a stone, a “Rock”, with which Goliath was defeated and caused his head to be removed. Nor is it a small thing that it was those who were in “Stress” and those who were in “Debt” and those who were “Discontent” who gathered around David when Saul sought his life.

Those who argue against me will undoubtedly refer you to Paul’s first letter to the Corinthians, 15:50. They will say that this proves that flesh and blood must perish before the Kingdom of God can come. But there is a seventh day and there is an end to the seventh day. Paul has spent the rest of the letter explaining that they are in the “Tribulation”. 7:31: “I think that in view of the present distress it is well for a person to remain as he is.” 7:29: “I mean, brethren, the appointed time has grown very short;”. 7:31 “For the form of this world is passing away.”

He has been explaining that your body is the Temple of God, and that you are the body of Christ. More importantly, he has stated it plainly to be a mystery. Will you then insist that he means it literally? He prefaces it with 15:42-49. He is speaking of a physical body which receives a Spirit, The Holy Spirit. You are dead in the flesh just as you sin because of the Law. But when the Spirit gives life to the Body of Christ in the form of His followers, we will reach out to the Kingdom of God which is at hand. This is the “second story”, the seventh day. 15:25: “For He must reign until He has put all His enemies under His feet.” This is the foundation you must build on as Paul told you: and your work will be tested with fire to see if it remains as part of the house of the Lord. When Paul says “We shall not all sleep”, he is referring to the death of the Saints of the early Church (1st Corinthians 15:6). Compare this to the language in Galatians 1:16, where flesh and blood refer to the thoughts of men who do not have the Spirit, and you will understand that he is saying that one need not die to be changed.

1st Corinthians 15:24: “Then comes the end, when He delivers the Kingdom to God the Father after destroying every rule and every authority and power.” This is the eighth day and the end of all flesh. Without the seventh day, the thousand years of Christ’s reign with the Beast dead and Satan in chains in the pit, cannot come to pass. The steps are clear. God will give the earth to Jesus the Christ as a footstool. Christ will reign. Christ will judge. Christ will institute the Law for He is the embodiment of the Law. This is the reason He was able to be found without sin under the Laws of Moses: why God was well pleased with Him.

There will be those who point to 1st Thessalonians beginning at 4:13-17. But do not be confused between the first resurrection and the second. Even the Apostles conceded that Paul’s language was difficult.

4:15 “For this we declare to you by the word of the Lord, that we who are alive, who are left until the coming of the Lord, shall not precede those who have fallen asleep.” Perhaps he is simply saying that those who are to see the coming of the Lord come after those who fall asleep waiting (sleep meaning the first death and not the second): that others enter the Kingdom ahead of them. After all, he does not say where they are “left”. Or perhaps he is saying that though you are the body of Christ you are asleep, dormant, as so many generations have been as they wait for the appointed day: or perhaps he means both. For in this same way Peter’s second letter 3:1-13 speaks of sleeping fathers and the changing of the world in metaphor.

4:16 “for the Lord himself will descend from heaven with a cry and command, with the archangel’s call, and with the sound of the trumpet of God. And the dead in Christ will rise first.” So that just as the Holy Spirit descended on Christ at His Baptism, so the Spirit of the Lord will enter the body of Christ who is those among you who will accept it. The trumpet sound of God is the raising of the voices of Israel just as it was at Jericho and as it was expressed in 2nd Thessalonians 3:1 where the Word of the Lord is the trumpet. 4:17: “Then we who are alive, who are left, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; so we shall always be with the Lord.” The second story, the first resurrection, looks a great deal like the third story, the second resurrection. They will both come in their own time, in their own way. But these verses are better understood in the language of the King James Version, where it is clear that those who die before the coming of Christ will not be forgotten.

1st Thessalonians 4:14-16 “For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. For we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first:”

In 4:16 the language states: “the dead in Christ shall rise first.” They say dead when they have just promised that God will bring with Him those who “sleep” in Jesus. If one passes from this life in Christ they are not dead but rather they are said to be sleeping. So that in order to be dead in Christ and rise at the first resurrection, one’s body must still be alive but their spirit dead in Christ and that Spirit of Christ received and them thereby then changed: risen in Spirit.

In the first resurrection, those who are alive but dead within their flesh will come alive in Spirit and be caught up in metaphor to Christ along with those who are at present, not dead in the Law through Grace. This means those who are Christians in Spirit along with those who were not previously of the Spirit at the time. They are raised up to the air, perhaps to the third heaven Paul boasted of knowing about from visions, where the Spirit can ascend without the body (2nd Corinthians 12:2). The fact that they rise first may just be the prerequisite, the required order necessary for the body of Christ to be raised: or it may mean that in the hardness of your heart, Christians will be put to shame and it will be the sons of Isaac and of Ishmael that proclaim the coming of the Lord first. That is up to you.

And if they show you 1st Thessalonians 4:13-17, then show them 1st Thessalonians 5:16-22. and read for them all of 2nd Thessalonians 2, for I suggest to you that the lawless man does not refer to a single personage, but rather to any man who is called lawless, just as the man called to God through Jesus would be called “of the Law”.

And they will tell you that John has said in his second letter that “Men who will not acknowledge the coming of Jesus Christ in the flesh; such a one is a deceiver and the antichrist.” But you should remember that he is speaking of those who at the time refuted that Christ had risen and returned to eat with the Apostles. What’s more, Christ ascended in the flesh, which leads us to understand that He will descend in the flesh at the end of the Sabbath. Even so, at the end of this Age and the birth of the Age of peace, you are the body and the flesh of Christ Jesus, through whom He is to reign on earth.

Those who declined the invitation to the “Banquet” were the Jewish Nation, so that you were invited in their stead. But if you cannot identify the parables of which I speak so as to understand, then you are not dressed appropriately. The Kingdom of God is at hand. It comes to you through the cornerstone which the builders rejected. Like the stone at Meribah, He is the stone from which the waters of life flow: and like Moses and Aaron, if you have no faith in the Lord to deliver you, then you will not see the Promised Land. He is not the God of the dead. He is the God of the living. You cannot go to Him in death if you are not with Him in Life.

I spoke of “The Money Masters” in my letter to Brother Camping as a test to see if things are as I have argued them. I have given you a copy to the same end. I tell you now, that a writer, speaking on a conversation he had with the Chairman of the Federal Reserve Board: stated that he said to the Chairman, something to the effect, that in a prior conversation, the Chairman had stated thus or so. To which the Chairman replied, something like, "If you understood what I said, then I must have misspoken." I refer you to Jeremiah 5 from 15 on.

Like Abner, you have not kept watch over your King, and His spear and His water have been removed from their place. But I have come a second time to warn you. "Behold, as your life was precious this day in my sight, so may my life be precious in the sight of the Lord, and may he deliver me out of a tribulation."

There is a place for the praise of God and of Christ. The Psalms show that abundantly. But praise alone is as meaningless as faith without works and the Psalms demonstrate that as well. Dylan's "Blow 'in in the Wind" and Led Zeppelin's "Stairway to Heaven", or even Peter Gabriel's "Red Rain" honor the Lord more than all the (so called) "Christian Music" that fills the airways today, because they speak to the human condition. They seek to turn over the tables of inequity in the House of the Lord. They speak to the American Spirit that once caused the world to follow. It is ironic that the format of Rock and Roll that was so rebellious in all ways, good and bad, is the form used to deliver the lukewarm, milk toast, message of Christianity today.

John 5:25, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and they that hear shall live." Not only did Christ heal on the Sabbath, but he had one of those that He healed pick up his bed and carry it on the Sabbath (in violation of the law) as a sign. A sign to you that He works His miracles on the seventh day and you are to carry your "Sick Bed" in which you laid dying. You must carry it before the world: that the world might see that you have been healed on the Sabbath. There is a parable about a man who is cured of a demon only to return home and upon finding it in order, receives a worse one. The language is difficult but I see its answer in the way that Christ warned the man who took up his bed. He told him, "Sin no more, lest a worst thing come unto you."

If you go to your congregation and are “reborn” of a new spirit in the church and go from the church and proclaim to the world that you now follow Jesus, who is the Law and the Judge of the Law: but you continue in the ways of the world, then you have added blasphemy to your sins. You have become more corrupted than those who do not profess to know Jesus at all. If you go home to a house that is not built on the rock and “Find” that it is in order, you do not know right from wrong. If you build your life on a system that practices extortion rather than justice, enslavement rather than government, racism and war over brotherhood, women in dominion over men, old over young and the things made of the hands of man over the Word of God, then you do not know Jesus and He does not know you.

Without this work before you this day, you are like children singing and playing your instruments and wondering why Christ will not come and dance for you. He will not come in the flesh at this time because it is not your flesh He comes to redeem. Turn to Exodus 13:15&16 and read for yourselves. This is the redemption of flesh with flesh. Now turn to Deuteronomy 11:18 and read on. Christ came to redeem our hearts. And though you should most certainly praise Him, He is praised best when you live according to the Laws of the Father and in brotherhood with all mankind.

The first time that King David is said to have had the idea that, because he had built himself a fine house, he should build a house for the Lord: the Lord told him that it would be better if he (David) were to build a place in his heart for God. Then in 1st Chronicles 17:11 God tells him “I will raise up your offspring after you, one of your own sons, and I will establish his Kingdom. He shall build a house for me and I shall establish his throne forever.” David assumes that God means in the next generation. He puts aside materials and draws up plans for a House of God to be built by his son Solomon. Solomon does live in a time of relative peace and he does build a Temple and the people of Israel do see it as the fulfillment of the covenant. But you and I understand that God has referred to Jesus, the Christ to come. So that He, Jesus, tears down the very Church Solomon established and rebuilds it in three days. So that it is no small coincidence that the measure of gold taken in by Solomon annually is six hundred sixty six.

It is in the heart that the House of God is to be established, and just as God's plan was not as David understood: it is not as you have understood. If you will insist that the Lord Jesus must physically descend to earth in order for the first resurrection to take place then by that same rigid belief, you insist that He build for His Father a Temple of Stone. But the harvest of the weeds of the field must take place before the harvest of the wheat. I have brought you the tools of the harvest, of the one who has not shed blood, but it is you workers who must implement the harvest.

People: when you read the Old Testament and the way the Israelites "slew" all their foes without mercy, it is easy to ask why God would endorse such a thing. Then you reflect on the savagery of the peoples they were dispossessing. There are a lot of people out there in the world teaching about the love of God; and it is true that "God Is Love". But Samuel is testament to the jealousy and the wrath of a vengeful God. "Vengeance is mine!" Sayeth the Lord. When Joshua and Saul and David "Slaughtered" in the name of God it was genocide. It was the removal of "Dross". When you listen to the accounts of those who "slew" in Rwanda, the observers speak of men who would kill and be so appalled that they would kill again and again in an attempt to nullify their actions: as if they could become numb or change the truth by killing the witnesses. Whatever the drive, it stemmed from the spirit of evil. When we look at the peoples in the days of David, they are all capable of such deeds. They "Slew" pregnant women, children and all. Those young men of my generation, who saw only small measures of this kind of madness, often went mad themselves. We have been in the process of becoming more childlike to this day. We read that Noah was of the generation of the "Mighty Men" and we perceive from our cultural view that this makes them great. Yet, God destroyed them in a Baptism of Water so that the meek might inherit the earth. And those who shed blood find their blood shed. And those who live by the sword die by the sword to this day in the Baptism of Fire.

There is wheat and there is a great love in God for His children, but they must be reborn of a Spirit that is loving, sharing, submissive, compassionate, zealous for the truth, and for justice. They must revel in the law and love with the unconditional honesty of a child. That means honoring the laws of the land and fighting to change those that are unjust. So that if you are reborn of a church and its songs of praise that give you that “High” that comes from the chemistry in your body; that sends you home feeling good but does not change how you think or act: you are the seed that falls on the rocks and in the brambles.

I had completed all the work I had in mind to do when 9/11/01 happened. The fact that it was called 9/11, when nine, one, one is the distress number and September Eleventh rings of WWII’s day of infamy, is no small thing. I have had two dreams of particular significance. I also awoke once in a “rush”. But I have had no “visions”. The things I have shared with you today and those I have attempted to share in the past, are best described as things that were presented and I have seen. It is the nature of blindness, that those things which exist in front of you are “not” seen. So that when the adversaries of Jesus sought a sign, a great feat like the parting of the sea, He told them that they would see none except the sign of Jonah. Instead, He gave them sight and He healed. He was showing you in metaphor even as He was explaining what He was doing to the Apostles.

As for Jonah, he spent three days in the bosom of the Lord. Whether that was in the belly of a fish or whether it was metaphor for the Christians to come who would use the sign of the fish to identify their faith, I cannot say. But that was the scripture I was led to in those days and the reason I defended my name before you. After 9/11 I wrote on Revelations and read, with new eyes, the Prophets. It would not be until the early part of 2004 that I would be moved to read the New Testament again with new eyes and what it told me I shared with Mr. Camping. Since then I have been back to the beginning and now I have shared with you, that you may be reborn of a new Spirit: one that has sight. But it is a pilgrimage of nearly a thousand pages. Pages you did not seek out. Jonah went to a people who, like yourselves, were at odds with God. They repented and lived.

Samuel, Kings and Chronicles all show the many ways in which God delivers His people. When they asked if they should go up to war, He told them if they may or may not. He protected Elijah with fire from above. He slays thousands with His Angels. And yet, only Jehosephat and Hezekiah relied on God to save them without asking to shed blood them selves. Josiah rediscovered the Book of Law and set his nation right again only to try and do battle with those who God had sent to destroy as destroyers. Like Josiah, we have not acted with the wisdom of Jehosephat and Hezekiah: rather we have become those who destroy each other.

It requires the faith of a child. I can't tell you how this works out or how many weeds must be burned. Only God can say when enough dross has been smelted out of what is precious in the Baptism of Fire. How much more will you suffer before you are baptized; before you realize that when you hurt people you hurt the children of God and He will surely punish you for it. All I know for certain is that if you do not have the strength to stand and not deny Jesus, then you become part of the antichrist. If you lack the faith to believe that He will deliver you if you reach out, then you are not wheat for you must reach out, because those who are not with Him are against Him and God's will. His Kingdom come, His will be done, on earth, as it is in heaven.

When the call went out from Cyrus the King, that God's house should be rebuilt, the people who gathered to reassemble the stones and the gates in Jerusalem, set out to perform a symbolic act of contrition and submission to the Lord God, but they did not change at heart. Like sports figures who rely on charms and superstitions to prosper, or children knocking on wood, they were incapable of understanding the cause and effect of God's wrath.

I have rather an odd array of assimilated knowledge and information. It comes from wherever I am able to make use of it. One piece of information is a story I heard on a radio ministry about a British man who was once Knighted for having calculated the time from when the word went out to rebuild God's House at the decree of Cyrus; to Palm Sunday, when Jesus entered Jerusalem. Using the Jewish calendar and the words of the Prophets, this man was said to have confirmed what Jesus had proclaimed when He told them that they should have known He was coming.

So it is with these days. Nehemiah understood Cyrus' proclamation in terms of stone and wood, but God had ordained the Crucifixion. If things were as expected by the experts, the prophecies of the Prophets would be put to shame and God's Mysteries would not have been mysteries at all. Just as importantly: those who came with Nehemiah put their faith in God to keep them, even as they feared for their lives. They set an example for all Christians to aspire to. They did not deny their heritage or their God. Now it is your turn, for he who would deny the Son denies the Father and he who stands for the Son stands for the Father. This is especially poignant when you consider that Nehemiah was resetting the stones that had been drug from their place. The process of tearing down took nearly as much effort as raising up. And yet, when the towers that fall in the words of the Prophet come down, the world is changed forever in an hour's time.

Nehemiah dealt with another problem that we face today in our reconciliation with the Lord. It is the matter of the putting away of wives. Nehemiah proclaimed that the Jews had to put off their foreign wives and children. This was in accordance with the Laws given to Moses. Other women of other lands worshiped other gods, including the Baals. They worshipped things made by the hands of men and, in ways that harken back to Eve and resound in metaphor into today, they led men astray with their Harlotry.

Jesus proclaimed that a bill divorce was part of the Law for the sake of the hardness of your hearts and not for the will of God. This relates to the story of Ester in so far as the arrogance and the hardness of heart of the Queen of Persia. The second “story” of the Queen of Persia and Ester is the story of the Jewish rejection of Jesus as the Christ and the inclusion of Gentiles as a result. The third “story” is the way the women of today, with the consent of their husbands, have rebelled against their role in a nurturing society.

There are Laws in the Laws of Moses prohibiting men from divorcing their wives except in cases of infidelity. There are Laws against divorced women remarrying. These are sins we are living in today the answers to which I have not found. I take this to mean that the matter will ultimately be between you, your God and your intercessor, who is Jesus the Christ, your Lord and Savior. But I know for a certainty that none of us can perform this task before us to the satisfaction of the Lord without the “Esters” of our time, and those reborn of her Spirit, at our side. The forces with which we are engaged are powerful. They have devised all manner of institutional force to annihilate those who follow God. But like the sword of Goliath, those same laws and regulations will be turned when the Bride submits to the Bridegroom. And it may be that therein lies your answer, for it seems to me that a woman reborn in the Spirit of God is no longer the woman who was divorced, nor is the man.

I have explained the scriptures as I have seen and understood it. To those who would scoff when I say that the Tribulation has been upon mankind for nearly 2000 years, I would direct you to the 1st letter of John 2:18-25 and while you’re there read 1st John 2:4-6. Then I would direct you to Luke 9:23-27 and ask you to interpret it. I would ask them why it is that the sword of the Lord has not one, but two edges for cutting: and I would answer that it is because there is no right side against wrong side in war but only right fighting against left. And if they say to you that the idea of a world here on earth, where people try to live together as they do in heaven, like reaching the third floor of a seven story building, a third heaven on the way to a seventh: if they say that is a childish notion; then I would remind you that it is the children who belong to Jesus. So He told you, “Truly I say to you, whoever does not receive the Kingdom of God like a child shall not see it.” Do not give into this notion of a physical exit from this life in the Rapture. Remember, Paul does not say that the kernel becomes the plant and then the kernel once more. We do not go from body to Spirit and back to body. One cannot become imperishable only to return to being perishable.

If these things are not true then I ask you, is Paul contradicting Christ’s statement that He came to divide when Paul says, in Ephesians 1:10 “as a plan for the FULLNESS OF TIME, to unite all things in heaven and things on earth.”? Ephesians 2:1, “And you he made alive, when you were dead through the trespasses and sin in which you walked, following the course of the world, following the prince of power of the air, the spirit that is now at work in the sons of disobedience. Ephesians 2:7 “in the coming ages.” So that, there is more than one age to come. (You really should read all of Ephesians and Colossians).

There is a point that needs to be made clear to you all. It is a matter of misunderstanding, that is taught as Gospel, and because it is a fine point, please bear with me. When Abraham took his son Isaac off to offer him as a sacrifice to God, Isaac went along according to his father Abraham’s wishes. He did not go to offer himself as a sacrifice to God on his father’s behalf; only he went along to the sacrifice confident in the fact that, as his father had said, the Lord would provide the offering.

Now we can all identify with what a trauma that would have been for Abraham. So we should be able to understand that, while Isaac was a good and beloved son to Abraham, Jesus was a perfect son to God. So that when God causes His perfect son to suffer as Jesus did at the Crucifixion, it shows two things. It shows that God, who made the Law, does not shrink from the Law, and it shows His love for you. In fact, the Bible says God Is Love. But nowhere does it say that Jesus the Christ is love. That is not to say that Jesus does not love, but He is not the embodiment of love. He is the embodiment of the Law, and of Justice. The Shepherd who loves his sheep, despises the wolves. Moreover, in the Garden called Gethsemane He bid the Father that, if this cup could be taken away, let it pass: but “Thy will be done.” So that Christ went to the cross on your behalf, but He did it for the Father, His Father.

There seems to be some dispute over whether the story of the Adulteress belongs at the end of John 7 or the beginning of John 8. Either way, God only knows what Jesus was writing in the dirt while the guilty accused the guilty. It is worthy of note that when she found no one worthy of stoning her (with the exception of Jesus who stood before her), Jesus did not forgive her sins as He had done for some that He healed; rather, He told her to go and sin no more. But the real question is, what do you suppose would have happened had one of the crowd thrown a stone as Jesus bent down quietly writing on the ground? What do you suppose He would do today? What has He done since He rose. What is the difference between a suicide bomber wrapped in explosives, the Israeli soldier wrapped in a tank or the America pilot wrapped in a jet plane? Does He find India guilty and Pakistan innocent? When Shiites throw stones at Kurds and Jews through stones at Nazis, when South Korea chastises North Korea: when Joan of Ark lifts up a sword against her oppressors though God is unwilling to deliver her according to her wishes, what does Christ write in the dirt? For the Apostles taught that he who receives punishment underserved and accepts it, glorifies God. As for me, if the fire burns me, I do not hate the fire, but I keep my hand out of the flame in the future as best as I am able. If forgiveness is asked, I forgive, but if there is no repentance, it is the flame. I do not hate the flame but rather I refrain from engagement, for hate hurts me more than the flame.

Vengeance is the Lord God’s. Christ is the scale of justice and judgment. In His love, God gave you Christ as the perfect lamb of atonement. But if you do not know justice and fight for truth, you do not know Christ. Christ spoke in the New Testament in loving and affectionate ways, but He was speaking to those who would carry his message. He was speaking to His Apostles, who went to bed and woke up in a world that was threatening and hostile and bent on their destruction. The tones Jesus used with those that oppressed Him were not at all loving. If you persecute His children He will surely judge you accordingly.

I have explained to the best of my ability that all is metaphor. I believe that there will be a resurrection in which the souls of the Ages are raised to live in a world that is not physical in the sense of this earthly planet. I believe that, that is the second resurrection. I have no sight of those days. But I tell you that because God is Love, that if there is love in you, God is with you. And because Christ is the Law, if the Law is in you, then Christ is with you. And if your Spirit is reborn in a manner such as I have endeavored to impart to you, then the Holy Spirit will be with you. So that if you spend your days here on earth in the presence of God and Christ and the Holy Spirit, then you will be in heaven on earth, for heaven is where the three reside.

With these things in mind I would like to conclude by speaking about a mystery that I have eluded to in my writings but have not stated. There will be those who say that I put too much of America into my interpretations of the Bible; and while there are so many examples of how the template overlays the blueprint, God has given you a physical manifestation, an incarnation of a metaphor to tie America and myself and His plan together. And, make no mistake, God has a sense of humor.

They speak of the end of the “Dark Ages” as having come with the Renaissance. “The Age Of Enlightenment” as it is called, brought mankind forward to this day through science and the arts at the expense of Religion. And while some say that is the problem, they are only partly right, for “Religion”, as I have explained, is the Church which constitutes many of the heads of the Beast. So that in turning from Church, to God and Christ, the stage is set for true Enlightenment: and as it was at his first coming, you will see no signs except the statistical impossibility of all I will share with you, coming to pass except by the hand of God.

It is the continuation of the forward progression; the journey of Mankind. It begins with Abraham who finds forgiveness by righteousness and by his willingness to serve through works; that we might learn obedience. It became righteousness by way of atonement through offerings made to God at the Ark of the Covenant, in a culture and a nation that governed itself as a church based on the Laws of Moses; that we might learn repentance. That was replaced by a secular world which had power over the followers of God and where righteousness came through faith: faith in the Son and in His power to deliver and by the works that must accompany faith so that the churches were challenged, else we would not be here today arguing against them. So that out of this tribulation comes the lesson of faith that we might learn it as well. Each of these steps comes in its own time as the people of the time grow in preparation for the next Age to come. The “Rock” from which the waters of life flow is the Law and as Christ is the embodiment of the Law, He turned water into wine so that you would better understand His parable. For you are the “Wineskin”, the vessel, into which the wine is poured, and because change is difficult, only a person with a new skin can accept the effervescence of new wine. Those who are old in Spirit will always say that the old wine tastes better. In fact, the story of Dinah has a “Second Story” as well. You see, Dinah represents the Bride of the Bridegroom. She is a representation of the Jewish religion that belonged to the Chosen People and, for a time, to the Chosen People alone. When you read of the early Church of Christ, the Apostles were engaged in a struggle with those of the “Circumcision Party”, who taught that all those who wished to receive Grace through Christ Jesus had to be circumcised. They were jealous of their religion and of those who took it without their permission. You can get a feel for what I refer to by reading 2nd Corinthians 11 where Paul talks of his church much the same way as Genesis talks of Dinah. Of course the third day found dead, those who tried to enter, as countrymen, into an association based on circumcision. If one dare to speak anything unflattering of Judaism in our society today: I would say that it is logical to assume that with Christians in control of the world, using what Non-Christian Jews view as a “Knock Off”, or copy, of their religion, their feelings might run much like Jacobs sons did. Unfortunately, the Circumcision Party led people down the road to death just as Jacob’s sons did. What’s more, Jacob’s fears of repercussion were prophetic. All is Parable and they bear witness to God that He is God and that He is all knowing: that He has planned and known from the beginning. What’s more, He does not bear witness to Mohammad, but only to Jesus the Christ, His beloved Son. So that the metaphor extends not only to those who did not receive the proper understanding of the “New Thing” that Christ brought and thereby the grace it promised: but it also makes reference to the Jewish people who reject Jesus to this day for as a day is like a thousand years to God, this day, the third millennium has dawned and the lesson for those who wish to be one with the bride through circumcision is clear.

In this Age about to be born, the world is secular and free of the organizations that separate Mankind from God. The Church Age has ended but Mankind remains righteous in the Law as best he can. Grace is still necessary because we are imperfect, but the world is changed, for the stumbling block is removed. This is my part: that I have laid down the words as a patch to mend the tear. The Law has been applied to this Age. Had it been applied to a previous Age it would not have held over time, for a new piece used to mend an old will fail. God promised us heaven on earth, and from a physical standpoint, if the Apostle Paul had seen a vision of the standards by which we live today here in America from his tent in the desert heat and the desert cold, he would surely have seen it as the Promised Land. We have rebuilt the Tower of Babel in Good Time. Now we must become Enlightened in God lest He cast it down in the Baptism of Fire.

When we read the story of Esua and his brother Jacob we are struck by the fact that God has allowed Jacob to become the blessed one out of his treachery and so I have pondered it. In so doing I came to understand that Esua's hairy red body at birth, and Jacob's use of a kid's skin and the blood of the lamb Christ are the metaphors that are at work in the story. You see, the firstborn Israel was given grace through birthright. But Christ, the second born son Israel, became perfected in the shedding of His blood. By mimicking Esua in the skin of a kid Jacob is mimicking the Christ, the Lamb to come. Whereas, Esua mimics at birth. When we read the story we ask why God allows Jacob's treachery to succeed. But it is not God who made the law that the firstborn should be given the blessing and the inheritance. This is the law of man. Why then did God not overturn this law? Because the wineskin would have burst. The violence of the ages would have increased dramatically without the continuity of Birthright. Not because God would be offended, but because mankind is unfair to itself.

When the sons of Liberty signed their names to the "Declaration of Independence", among their number was the illegitimate son of a prostitute. Not one of those to whom the world owes so much, was born of British Aristocracy. But look at the history that had to transpire in preparation for that event. And so we see the growth of mankind in its thinking and in its institutions born of the knowledge of God Almighty. While we are slow to understand, God's plan is perfect. What's more, the lesson is clear. Not only did Esua, the firstborn, sell his inheritance for a bowl of potage as metaphor for the ways in which the Jewish people traded their Covenant with God for the things of the world: but because the lineage of the chosen people descends from Jacob (Jacob who found grace in the Lord God without Birthright), we are all justified without need of birthright by Jacob and by Isaac as well as Jesus.

Because God loves you, He would not have instituted a Baptism of Fire against you without giving you a way to put it out. This country, of which I am a son, was forged of Laws as set forth by the example of God so as to be a beacon unto the world. In the year of our Lord 2001, I put forth a work to unite the world in the precepts of God, as I understood them. It marked the commemoration of the end of the second millennium of the Baptism of Fire. In the year after my country's Bicentennial, which marked the commemoration of the end of the second hundred years of America's Independence from Birthright, in the 201st year, the physical manifestation of the metaphor by which the Baptism of Fire may be quenched was forged. It was given an International form, and in the 210th year it came into my possession and underwent a metamorphosis that would ultimately fulfill the words of the Prophets and lead me to the Mysteries of God which I have shared with you. When you discover the meaning of these words, then you will know all the Mysteries given to me.

All men are corrupted because they make their way in a world that is corrupted. It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter the Kingdom of God because only the corrupt can succeed in a corrupt world. But in a world in which the precepts of God are the foundation of the Government and the systems by which men live are not in conflict with the Law, all things are possible. If you can go forth and change the world so that you may live in Christ, who is the Law, then by all means go and do so. But if you cannot, then receive the instruction given to me that you may go forth as the Body of Christ to do the will of Almighty God. Do not misunderstand, nor delude yourselves into thinking that God is unable to defeat Satan without your help. But rather, it is to the Glory of God that some will choose to live in Him. The battle is not to determine who is God, for God, and God alone, is God. This is the battle for the hearts and minds and souls of Mankind. It will not be the wheat taken and the weeds left behind as some teach. It will be the wheat that remains in a world governed by the Spirit of the Law. But as you have not sought to look, you do not know what it looks like. It is not the final answer. It is the starting point, and where it goes from here only God knows. You have come at a time which is the end of this Age. For these days you have been taught by the obedience of Abraham, the repentance of the Ark of the Covenant and the faith in Christ, who was given for your sake out of the love of the Father as intercessor, but also as judge, slayer, divider and conqueror. Those whom Satan would call “Whistle Blower” Christ would call “Valiant”. Those whom Satan would call “Rat”, Christ would call “Repentant”. Those whom Satan would call “Dissident”, Christ would call “Witness”.

God gave us Americans a nation of Laws but we have failed to keep His Laws. He has made us the most powerful nation in history in order that we might be strong enough to be Meek, brave enough to be Just, and humble enough to admit when we are Wrong. For we have neglected the weightier matters of the Law, Justice and Mercy and Faith. So let me tell you the second story of Rahab so that you will understand why she and her family dwell with Israel to this day and why she is called a Harlot rather than a prostitute. It is for your sake. Because you live deep in the systems and the organizations that separate those on the inside from those on the outside, you are steeped in the corruption of this world. You have played the Harlot to the world and you make your home in the very walls that are about to come down. “All in all, your just another brick in the wall”. Those who went to search out the land where called spies for they went to see, but when the word is given that their deliverance is Rahab’s salvation they are called messengers. Some of you will choose the red string for your wrist and cause a breach. But hopefully, you will bind that red cord in your window. You will keep your family indoors on the day of reckoning as they did at the Passover. If you do not, it will not be on my head but on yours.

These are the signs He has given you. We must be in the Son, even as He is in the Father: this to the Glory of God. So that if you are for God, you must proclaim yourself as a believer in this work or you hide His Treasure and take the mark of the Beast rather than the mark of God. There is no middle ground. One cannot become imperishable, only to become perishable again. And at the end of His Reign Christ will give the Kingdom back to His Father. Do you suppose therefore, that in the course of eternity, Christ will reign for a thousand years and then be done? NO! He reigns on earth where bodies fail and people sleep in Christ, but at the judgment, when Christ returns the Kingdom to God His Father and judges all men, then comes the second resurrection, the third story of mankind. This is the eighth day.

If you still need more confirmation of these things; go to Matthew. He will tell you the narrative of our savior the Christ. He will share with you the parables with which Jesus taught and the explanation from Jesus why these things must be, and by the time you get to Matthew 14, you can read the story I have shared once more. It begins with Herod the tetrarch, which means governor of one fourth: so that he represents a secular government. He is involved in the sin of Adultery with Herodias who represents the Harlotries of the world that control all governments. Herodias wants John the Baptist's head severed from its body because John declares the truth of her harlotries to the people. So she has her own daughter play the Harlot before Herod and he is forced by circumstance to comply. John represents the church whose head was separated with the death of the Son's of light and you are the daughters of the Harlot if you seek to please the world rather than God.

Upon learning of John's death, Jesus feeds around 5,000 (5,000 plus years being the 6th millennium of Jewish history), with 5 loaves of bread (the bread being the body of Christ), and 2 fish (the fish being the sign of Christianity and 2 being the days of tribulation-one thousand years equaling a day). By my reckoning it could be argued that the number 5 represents the number of days in the modern work week or the 5,000 of the 5,000+ which is today the Jewish record, or something else I do not see: but together the 5 and the 2 add up to 7 which means the "total" number of years of the Age of Tribulation. At the end of the "day" the pieces (of the body) were gathered up, but to what end there is no reference; only that the number of pieces gathered filled twelve baskets: twelve being the number of the Apostles. This was the night that Peter walked on water with Jesus by faith.

Then Christ taught about what is clean and what is unclean and what defiles. Then He fed them once again. This time it would be 7 loaves (a total number with only a little Christianity added as a few small fish), and the “Total Number” gathered up as witness in the form of 7 full baskets. It was 4,000 that were fed and so I perceive the 4th day of Christ, the eighth day of God’s week and the end of all things at the second resurrection. It is here that Jesus instructs His Disciples to discern the leaven of the Pharisees as a parable and yet they could not. Had they been able to they would have given instruction into the wrong Age. Then He blessed Simon Peter for discerning what no man had uttered, so that Peter, (whose name means Rock or Stone), recognized the truth that Jesus was the Christ, and was proclaimed the “Rock”. He discerned as you must now discern. Will you see the truth and be given the keys to the Kingdom of Heaven? Just as Peter rebuked Jesus, if you are the body of Christ and you are told not to do God’s will, it is Satan who taunts you as he did through Peter. For Jesus told you what is required to follow Him and after six days He took them to the mountain as was “Transfigured” before their eyes.

Then He taught them about the Kingdom of Heaven just before he went out to over turn (overthrow) the tables in the Temple. But the fig tree did not bear fruit, so that He rebuked it. Why would Christ rebuke a plant which has no soul if not as a message to you? Why would He give you the parable of the two sons, one who says he will not, but repents, and one who says he will, but does not; if not for your benefit? For now I come to gather the fruits of my Master who comes with the call of the archangel. It is an invitation to the Wedding Feast and are you too busy? Do you follow blind guides? For, as He describes the blind guides, He describes the end. He tells you of the brides and their lamps and gives you the parable of the treasure. Then He prepares for His death and explains the meaning of the bread and the wine of the Last Supper: will you not see the order of things?

You are the last to go into the vineyard in this Age. You are also the first of the New Age. So that, the last shall be first to enter the new Age in which Jesus, who is judge, is also the model for the administration of the Law. The Laws are just and the punishment is tempered, rather than the laws unjust and punishment severe. What began with the Bushmen, a people who lived in harmony without possessions, has come full circle to a time when love of possessions has corrupted the Bush-men. So that we have been growing in preparation for these days so that we might learn to live together in the midst of the bounty God has bestowed upon mankind. This is the New Age which has arrived. It marks the end of division and the beginning of the Age of Peace in which the transition of Mankind continues to the Glory of God. So that His wish as He expressed it to King David may be fulfilled, that His Temple is built in the hearts of men and His Laws are written on their souls, that they might set upon the Mercy Seat before the Throne of God at Judgment. This is the generation elected. Do not be like Ananias and his wife but rather put oil in your lamps from your flasks and give light to His coming. This is the Narrow Gate, the window of opportunity. If you knock after the door is closed, He will not open it, but He will say, "I do not know you." This is the treasure buried in a field that upon finding it a man returns home and sells all that he has to buy that field. I ask nothing for myself. If I were able to give you printed books for free I would, but while I am the Publisher, I am not the Printer, nor does he bargain with me. So it comes to this. Take nothing of what I have said without confirming it for your self. Seven is not the third prime number, it is the fourth and there are undoubtedly other mistakes in my work as well. But you cannot escape the Law. Exodus 22:25 "If you lend money to any of my people with you who are poor, you shall not be to them a creditor, and you shall not exact interest from him." We have been ensnared while you sat quietly in your meeting halls proclaiming yourselves as witness. To he who does much, much is given. Go forth on your own to your Government and its systems. Honor the Law and God and make right this grievous injustice if you are able. But if you fail, understand that the door is closing: the time is short and there are many to be educated in the Law if they are to be saved.

Revelations 3:10-22

“Because you have kept my word of patient endurance, I will keep you from the hour of trial which is coming on the whole world, to try those who dwell upon the earth. I am coming soon: hold fast what you have, so that no one may seize your crown. He who conquers, I will make him a pillar in the temple of my God; never shall he go out of it and I will write on him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, the new Jerusalem which comes down from my God out of heaven, and my own name. He who has an ear, let him hear, what the Spirit says to the churches. And to the angel of the church in Laodicea write: ‘The words of the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of God’s creation.

“I know your works: you are neither cold nor hot! Would that you were cold or hot! So, because you are lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew you out of my mouth.

For you say I am rich, I need nothing; not knowing that you are wretched, pitiable, poor, blind, and naked. Therefore I counsel you to buy from me gold refined by fire, that you may be rich, and white garments to clothe you and keep the shame of your nakedness from being seen, and salve to anoint your eyes, that you may see. Those whom I love, I reprove and chasten; so be zealous and repent. Behold, I stand at the door and knock; if any one hears my voice and opens the door, I will come in with him and eat with him, and he with me. He who conquers, I will grant him to sit with me on my throne, as I myself conquered and sat down with my Father on his throne. He who has ears, let him hear what the Spirit says to the churches.’”

AMEN

With the conclusion of the letters, I would like to try and restate some of what I have written about $E=MC^2$ in “Revolution Number Ten” as I have come to better understand it.

To begin with, remember that the Universe as we look out to ponder it, is the design that Albert Einstein used to understand sub-atomic movement. Just as the planets and the stars move like specks within the Universe, the components of atoms move as specks within their orbits. It is only the speed at which they sweep through their orbit that gives Mass the illusion of being solid. These realizations are at the core of the idea of the “Singularity”. But electrons do not travel in a void of space any more than do the stars in what science calls “Space”. “Space” does not exist within the parameters of the expanding Universe. From its center, to the outermost dimensions of the Universe, all things, all Matter, swims in a soup of “E”.

I ask you to think for a moment of energy as tiny Styrofoam beads. To do that, you must divorce yourself from your perceptions of energy. That is to say that, instead of looking at energy as a propellant or as the warmth you feel when standing near a fire or in the Sun; think of “E” as the smallest thing that can exist. Imagine that it travels through Mass like X-Rays travel through your body. Imagine further that an X-Ray is a configuration of a wave of “E”. So that, just as an X-Ray travels through your body uninhibited by much of what it encounters, pure “E” travels uninhibited by anything other than the constraints light faces with regard to speed. That is to say that, “E” must displace “E” according the analogy of the theater seats, with regard to the speed of light. We’ll name it “Displacement Theory” if no one else is using that name. The difference is that, as Einstein expressed in notes on “Relativity”, it is not “E” moving through Mass, but Mass that swims through a sea of pure Energy, the Fabric of the Universe.

I have explained Matter as a function of compressed “E”. When your local oxygen supplier sets out to fill oxygen tanks and hydrogen tanks and argon tanks, they begin by compressing air from the atmosphere. At given pressures, at given temperatures, gases become liquid and so elements can be separated out under controlled conditions. But what we consider to be a container is actually a strainer. As more and more molecules are pushed into a confined space, the “E” is forced out from between molecules and possibly even from within molecular structures. Displaced by Matter, the “E” passes through the container wall like an X-Ray through water.

If the pressure is reduced subsequent to this initial action, at a given temperature, the reaction will be that the liquid will expand. Energy that was compressed out from between the molecules as it passed from gas to liquid will now be reintroduced as it passes back to gas. There will be a reduction of Energy in the surrounding area as a result of an, Osmosis like, reaction. You will perceive the Energy being withdrawn from your body as “cold”.

If these things are true, then the Universe is like a bag of popcorn in a microwave. The little Styrofoam balls that we swim through fill the void in which Matter exists. At the same time, Matter, as defined by MC^2 , displaces “E”. The “Kernel’s” amount of space displaced by “M” is not nearly enough to accommodate the expanded displacement potential of all those little Styrofoam balls that burst out when conversion from Matter to Energy takes place.

Similarly, when light waves are configured, the waves move through the fabric of space until they hit something. What we perceive and measure, as “Heat” is the increase in something like “Relative Pressure” in the “E” present. This is why things expand when warm and contract when cold. It’s why temperature was a factor in the changing of liquid to gas. The process of Photosynthesis can then be explained along the lines of the forces that play in filling the oxygen bottles, only reversed. Calories, which are units of Energy, are stored: trapped within molecular bonds. Carbon is gathered by introducing Energy to CO_2 . Energy is carried off in the conversion of CO_2 Molecules into Oxygen Molecules. At given temperatures, these molecular structures that were built using Photosynthesis can combust in a chain reaction we call fire. This process releases Energy as the molecular bonds are broken down, which we again perceive as heat. Within our bodies these calories of Energy are released in appropriate amounts to replenish the Energy being lost. This process keeps equilibrium between the molecular structures that make up living things.

Without enough Energy the bonds do not hold. Just as dangerous is a situation in which too much Energy floods in, washing away the bonds and releasing all the Energy until all that remains is the Carbon foundation and the odd mineral. This connection between Carbon and Energy and Oxygen is probably why we are Carbon based life forms. It is the molecular bonds, which somehow affect the retention of these free particles of Energy. Free, because they are not bound in Matter. Clothing cannot retain Energy any more that it might slow an X-Ray. But it can slow the movement of air molecules. Molecules that can in turn retain Energy: thereby maintaining a constant "E-Pressure". The best molecule for retaining free Energy is most likely the water molecule, H_2O . Which is why it is the basis of all life, and why the Earth has so much of it. It's probably why it is an excellent conductor of electricity. The best element is probably Oxygen, which is why we can only go minutes without it.

If these things are the truth of the matter, then the expansion of the Universe is a function of an ever-increasing volume of the Fabric of the Universe within the confines of the Universe's spherical dimensions. Absolute zero does not exist except beyond the veil of the outermost frontiers of that expanding Universe and within its boundaries, the amount of "E" within a given space and the subsequent "Relative Pressure" it creates fluctuate relative to their proximity to the center of the Universe and the amount of Energy being converted from Matter that the area receives. My guess is that it is near the heart of the Universe that this "E-Pressure" is most constant. I am also inclined to believe that that is where you will find our little planet located. In the end we may come to understand that electricity reacts like water because this E-Pressure is just like water pressure: even responsible for water pressure. We may decide that conductors conduct because they hold a lot of “E” between their molecules. That is to say, their stadiums are large and their seats are full. Rocks, on the other hand, neither conduct electricity nor hold heat well because their seats are limited and mostly empty. It may be that the adhesive affect of “E” keeps earth’s molecules bound together, but that there is a limit to the amount of “E” a molecular structure can hold. As a result, the “E-Pressure” developed between molecules as planets spin through this Universal Fabric causes a downward (inward) pressure that we perceive as a downward pull that we call gravity. Perhaps the convergence of all this “E” at the center of our planet causes an over abundance of “E”, which keeps the molecules in a wash and the center molten. Perhaps by trapping greater than normal amounts of “E” between molecules of iron we can cause a strand of iron to be drawn to the vertexes of “E” found at the polar ends of the Earth’s axis. Perhaps those vortexes are inverted. Perhaps they dwarf a class 5 tornado.

Imagine that there is nothing at the center of an Atom at all. Imagine that instead there are only these compressed particles of “E” that we call Matter and that they are repelled by each other because of the immense amount of “E” that each contains. Imagine if you will that in the beginning, all the atomic particles of the Universe were set in motion in a circular orbit within their individual atoms. At the center of the orbit, a void of “E” causes a vacuum of sorts that the “E” outside the orbit attempts to fill. Outside the orbit, a volume of “E”, compressed against the orbiting particles, holds electrons in their orbit. But none of that “E” can ever pass inside the perimeter because the speed at which the particles orbit is faster than the pressure outside can propel the “E” past the orbiting particles: thus maintaining the void and equilibrium. That is unless enough Energy is developed outside the atom to increase the “E-Pressure” to levels that force Energy to bypass the orbiting Matter. The result is a loss of vacuum, which in turn allows Matter to fly out of orbit, colliding with other particles of Matter. The chain reaction causes the equilibrium that holds Matter together to fail. “E” is released like the popping of a kernel of popcorn, thereby increasing Energy levels and continuing the process. As the chain reaction moves out from the center, the sphere enlarges until the outer perimeter is large enough to absorb the Energy released between molecular bonds without forcing Energy past other orbiting particles of Matter in adjacent atoms. The high levels of Energy absorbed within those molecules cause those molecules to “Radiate” waves of dangerously high amounts of Energy for some time to come. What’s more, if we were ever to set off enough such “nuclear” explosions of Energy, in close enough proximity so that the process were to overlap, we might well give rise to another sun.

These hypotheses do not, however, explain why the planets orbit the Sun. To address this, let us first look at “Centrifugal Force”. Centrifugal force is that force which propels a body out from the center. If you take a drop of water and put it near the center of a plate and then spin that plate fast enough, the drop of water will follow a straight path to the edge of the plate. But the force that set the water in motion came from the Energy released in the spinning of the plate in a circular motion. Imagine therefore, that the Free Energy bound within the molecular structure of that water were acted upon as though it was a sail on a ship, or perhaps set on a step on an escalator is a better example. That, because “E” cannot pass through “E”, the molecule could be buffeted about by the Energy in motion pushing against the Energy bound within the structure. Such “trapped” energy can still be released or forced to “move over a seat”, but it has sufficient bonds to the molecules acting upon it that it causes molecules to react to the displacement of Energy. Let me restate this in another way.

When surfers sit on their boards out on the waves, the waves pass under them. The wave of Energy passing beneath them does not carry them away unless they paddle to “Catch” the wave. Even then, the “riding” of a wave is really the falling off of the wave’s front edge at a speed consistent with the swell of the wave coming up from its base. Just as when waves “break”, surfing is a function of gravitational forces interacting with the “wave” of Energy. In a similar manner, Energy emanating from the center of a plate as it spins will travel out from the center like the treads of an escalator. It may be that when enough Energy (speed) is developed to overcome inertia, the drop of water will begin to move as a result of the interaction between the movement of the waves and the force exerted against Energy bound within the water molecule. If we state inertia as the adhesion of one molecule to another due to the presence of “E”, and or “E-Pressure”, then by increasing the Energy applied, that bond can be washed away so to speak. Set in motion by the increase in Energy in motion.

If, therefore, Energy were exerted (added) along an axis that caused the plate to spin, then Energy would travel out from the center as a result of developing pressure: causing a centrifugal force. Furthermore, without enough reduction in the surrounding Energy to cause a vortex, Matter riding that Energy would spin out of orbit and follow a straight path as defined by Natural Law. The line it would follow would not be along a line extending from the center and perpendicular to the outer edge of the plate; but the trail of the water would be. Why? Because the Energy applied to spin the plate would set in place Energy waves proportionate to the speed at which the plate rotated. The further away from the center of the plate, the faster the given circumference speeds to meet the drop. That is to say that as speed of the trajectory of the water drop increased, so too did the speed at which the plate moved into position to keep the drop’s path moving from center along a straight line perpendicular to the perimeter. At least I think that’s how it works. Put an umbrella in one hand and balance it in the palm of another. Use your body’s Energy to flex your muscles. The Energy you apply with a spinning motion will cause an equal reaction up the handle of the umbrella. Watch the droplets fly.

Perhaps the Sun gives off so much Energy that it creates a vortex at its core. Perhaps Energy is hurled away at such force that it overcomes the pull of that vortex. Perhaps the Fabric of the Universe drifts back toward that vortex and as it does it pushes against the Free Energy held in high concentrations between molecules of masses such as planets. We'll call this pushing force Gravity. Perhaps we can explain Orbit as the state which occurs as a result of the motion caused by Matter's need to follow a straight path of trajectory as a result of Natural Law and the pull of the vortex: which is manifest in the Osmosis like drift of the fabric "E". It is Energy drifting back toward the extreme low E-Pressure at the core of the Sun, or at least, in the direction of the Sun. Molecules within Mass trying to maintain a straight trajectory, see that trajectory arch as the medium in which they travel moves back toward the Sun: like floating down stream as you swim across a river. Just as speed of rotation and Energy propulsion are proportionate in the example of the drop of water making a straight line on the plate: when there is equilibrium between the Energy propelling an object in a straight line and the drift of the fabric "E" toward the body said to have "gravity", we have orbit.

If this is correct, then what is true for the umbrella would hold true for a spherical body as well. If we say that Centrifugal Force acts against Energy in a way that produces a vortex within a sphere, then the potential for such a vortex at the Earth's core would then be found to be less than the "E-Pressure" generated by the tension of our atmosphere spinning against the Fabric of the Universe, coupled with the Energy added to our atmosphere by the Sun. This would allow "E" to concentrate at the Earth's core as described. But the size of a body such as the Sun might have a vortex and enough additional outward thrust of Energy to offset the "E-Pressure" at its surface. In such a paradoxical event, the core of the Sun would be quite "cold". Perhaps the high levels of Energy at the surface of the Sun cause Energy to be repelled away from its core much as I have described the interaction of particles of Matter within the Atom: resulting in a vacuum like state at the center despite the outward propulsion of Energy from the surface. In any event, the effect of such movement of Energy away from the Sun would be similar to running down the "up" escalator. On the one side we have the push of Osmosis that keeps the Fabric of the Universe moving in the direction of any void. On the other side we have all those bits of “E” demanding a seat at the end of the row and causing the spectators to move over as the stadium drifts in the other direction.

I hope that you found this interesting. The paradox of this notion, this view, of the Universe is that it gives a physical description of those things that cause Matter and Energy to interact as they do. I would remind you that I am obviously imperfect. This unifying theory of the Universe is probably even more imperfect. That would give it something in common with every other Unifying Theory of the Universe that ever was. But the irony is that, the scientific view of Natural Laws that uses the “PULL” of Gravity and of Magnetism to explain how things work will be the view that prevails. Ironic, because while we can witness the work of the two forces at play, we can neither see them nor explain them. We can only measure their effect. It is by these standards that the world has understood that there is a God and yet “Science” refutes His existence, while holding up the theories of Gravity and Magnetism as a self-evident truth.

Einstein said that light consisted of energy packets he called photons. If he was right and I am wrong, then light waves may represent the ripple made in the Fabric of the Universe (the “E”), as photons pass through. But the key is this: if Energy cannot be destroyed, it cannot be said that space is a void. Nor can “Science” show you the creation of Matter from Energy using Natural Laws. Still, you needn’t concern yourself too much with these arguments laid out with regard to $E=MC^2$. I have shared them only to bring you to the greater truth. That truth being that, the true proof of God and of Jesus as The Christ, lie in the Bible’s ability to predict an outcome, not in Man’s ability to “Test” for God. Indeed, God has promised that He cannot be tested. I have given you enough information to find that proof if you will open your eyes and your hearts and seek the truth. But you must be open and you must become wise. Just as the meaning of $E=MC^2$ is altered by writing it $E=(MC)^2$, you must use caution when interpreting the Bible. When Genesis says, “and He made the stars also”, do not presume that He put the stars in Heaven for He has called Heaven the place between the waters. He has said the firmament of the heavens (E). Just as there is a difference between the words Heaven and heavens, the Bible refers to both the Father and the Son as Lord, depending upon the text. In the same way, Revelations speaks of a “Number” being needed to make transactions. It does not say that it will always be the same number for all transactions. Perhaps it is your Social Security Number here in America when you buy a home or a “Bar Code” number when you buy a candy bar, or a Taxpayer I.D. when you sell one. It says that some will wear the name of God. It says that some will wear the mark of the Beast. It says that the Beast will cause all to take a mark ‘in’ their foreheads, but that does not mean that the mark chosen will not be the mark of God. The King James Version of Revelations 13:17 says “And that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name”. If the “Weeds” are gathered first, the Children of God will have to be buying and selling in those days to survive. If the “Beast” is the systems of the world that have corrupted Mankind, then anyone alive in those days must use the numbers of those systems. Put another way: let us ask if “save he that had the mark” might refer to the mark of God as expressed in Revelations 14:1 “having his Father’s name written in their forehead”. Looking at the sentence in this way shows us three ideologies. The first is those who, when forced to choose, choose God. The second are those who choose to follow the beliefs of the systems which are represented in the Bible as the Beast. The third are those who neither serve God by following The Christ nor embrace the systems of the Beast but are never the less trapped within them. In other words, there are those who see and turn through Christ, those who will not submit to God and those who will not submit to Christ.

It says that the number of the Beast is 666. But it only infers that the mark of the Beast will be the number of the Beast. I have given you the reason that the ‘number of a man’ is also the number of the Beast. Here we have three ideologies, three men and three sixes. These ideas, like so many in the Bible, are, I believe, mutually exclusive, and at the same time interlocked: but written down in a way that has served to keep them sealed up until now.

In the year 2003, it came to me that I should go to the desert to be sequestered there for forty weeks. So I traveled to the desert, and I went to Rubin Wells, and it came to pass that I would carry the water for the paving of the road that led away from Sodom in the direction of the city of the Angels. And when the last weeks were upon me I was given to understand those things that I shared in what I have since referred to as the Harlan letters. These things I say are true. I have not made them up. Nor are they part of the Mysteries of the Bible. But I have stated them so that you might understand that all is metaphor.

Lastly, Webster's dictionary gives several meanings for the word "image". One is "a mental representation". Another states "a general or public perception". Webster's also associates form and 'semblance' with the Biblical phrase "created in God's image". Perhaps they are right. That is certainly the common consensus. The Bible says that we were made from dust, which was the smallest particle know to man at the time. But the Bible also says that every child has an Angel which passes before God: God who is good and who is love. I am inclined to believe that these things are the perceptions and the mental representation in which God creates us. But life has a way of strangling the good and the love out of us, as we grow from child of God, angel of God, to cynical adult. Cynics, who Webster's describes as "one who believes that only selfishness motivates human actions". At the same time, Jesus warned that you never know when the human you are with might be an Angel. Webster's also defines image as the "embodiment" of something. Be the embodiment of good and of love. Make yourself over in the image of God as He created you. Be open in your minds and in your hearts children of God and live; fore lo, The Master comes.

All these things I had written: and though I had not solidified what is added from this point on into understanding, I felt it time to take a trip, for I was drawn to an event. In the shadow of a great city, which was named by its founders for the glory of the Church of Christ in Philadelphia, there is a struggle being waged for the souls of the children of God. One cannot travel across this country without being immersed in radio waves. Many of them are from radio stations that claim to be dedicated to the Word of God. But when one listens to them, though they speak with words from the Bible and refer to its stories and its lessons, there is something amiss. One man teaches that the Bible is full of symbolism but rebukes the “Big Bang Theory” because it is in conflict with the “Literal” interpretation of the Bible. A literal interpretation of Genesis is a “line” that they feel they must defend. But Genesis says that the place God called Heaven exists between the waters below and the waters above, and yet they teach that Heaven is not a place of this earth. The next ministry has raised an army of Lawyers to do God’s work in a court system that despises the Authority of God, as though God should be judged by men. One wonders if these Lawyers, who profess to work for the Lord, do so at Clergyman’s wages or at Lawyer’s wages. But the most pervasive message of all was the message, as James presented it; that Christianity is hollow without works. The true message that, while one cannot be saved by works, the “Acts” of Christians are the building blocks of God’s Holy Temple which is built upon the foundation that God has put in place: and that Jesus is the cornerstone of that foundation. For all this rhetoric, there was and always has been, a conspicuous absence of suggestions concerning ways in which those who follow God could contribute. To the contrary, one man teaches a fatalistic doctrine that seemed to state that: even if our lust for oil is destroying the world, we are powerless to do anything but develop new oil fields in Alaska and await the coming of the Lord to remake the world we have destroyed. In the end, they almost always returned to the idea that money should be sent so that work could be accomplished in the name of the contributor by the ministry.

When our Lord Jesus walked among the Nations of this Earth, the Israelites had long since gone to captivity. In those days it was Caesar who was King on Earth and to him went the tribute. Even Jesus Himself would pay the tribute. It was the Law of God as delivered to Moses that a "Tithe" should be paid to the Synagogues. This was the tribute to God. It functioned to provide a place of worship and a Priesthood dedicated to teaching the Word of God to the generations, as well as an offering for sin. In the days of Moses, it had been that the Synagogue was the seat of Government. But when power shifted from the Synagogues to Kings, if the King required a tribute; the Synagogue still collected the tithe. By the time of Christ, Caesar was that King. The Word of God, the Law of God, taught that Men of God, Israel, should protect the weak, the old, the widow and her orphan. But the Pharisees tithed mint and dill and cumin over and above Caesar's tribute and ignored the weightier matters of the law, such as justice; and so Christ despised them as they despised Him, for He was the Law Incarnate. Nor did they care for the old, saying instead that he who gives to the Synagogue need not give to his father and his mother.

In the wake of this country's "Great Depression" many of this Nation's elderly were starving. With that still in memory, after WWII it was proposed that, if we were to enter into a covenant between the young and the old, "Social Security" would honor our Fathers and our Mothers. The initial contribution was 1% of the payroll of the working class. Because it was a percentage of wages it was immune to the ravages of inflation. Never the less, the "TAX" was increased. Slowly at first. Then the self-employed were added to those "forced" to make a "contribution". As the percentage ballooned out of proportion, employers were forced to match the amount paid by employees in order to mask the seriousness of the problem: but no matter how you slice it, if it is a cost paid by your employer for your labor, it is still, in effect, being taken from your wages. Eventually, Medicare was added. But never were the rich asked to participate in a meaningful way, even though it is the rich who most benefit from the life's labor of the old. Today, between Social Security and Medicare, the self-employed pay nearly 16% on "Gross Personal Income". Regular employees, other than Government, pay the same when adjusting for the truth concerning matching contributions from your employer. These contributions are then distributed to the old and the lame and the widow and her orphan and, if Gays have their way, to surviving "Significant Others". What is not "distributed" immediately, is stolen to run a corrupt Government. In place of the surplus you will find Government Bonds ("I Owe You's") that supposedly bear interest; but who pays that interest? In truth, they only charge interest and create debt for future generations of taxpayers. And where is the "Church" in all of this? Where are the Ministries? Protected. Protected from Caesar by Tax Exemption so long as they remain benign and non-politicized. Protected from their obligation to care for the old and weak and the widow and her child by the social securities.

Today, in America, if you work for wages, you have tithed more than 15% whether you wanted to or not. Your income taxes paid to Government in addition to Social Security Contributions, contribute to the "Welfare State" of the "Great Society" as it was envisioned by President Linden Johnson in the 1960's. This too is a tithing to the poor, made by a strong and generous middle class that no longer exists. A tithing long since reduced to a Tax. For all this, all the way across this country, whenever I tuned in to see what was taught by those who profess to know God, I found them talking in parables and preaching guilt and asking for another 10% and insisting it should be 10% of the Gross. The irony is that, the money which flows to these ministries, as often as not, comes from elderly who get it from the tithe taxed for their sake from their children and their grandchildren. But God's Law says that parents should provide for children and we see it reversed. The President wants to divert 3% or 4% of these moneys into the Stock Market to prop it up in these Latter Days. In that way it can be stolen directly, rather than forcing “Wall Street” to encourage investment from a bankrupt Nation. The elderly lobby against it, even though they don’t understand the real motivation. They are told that if nothing changes, there will be nothing left for their children and their grandchildren. But they only understand that they believe themselves entitled to 16% and more, and the churches on both sides of the isle are silent.

When last I arrived in the little town of Dover I sought out a room and I looked in the “Yellow Pages” for a church. The area directory had four pages of listings in small print: all different churches, supporting different ministries and their administrations; all of them dependent on the tithe and all of them dependent upon the strife of this world to provide a need for their ministry as if it were some sort of Cottage Industry. When at last the body of Christ is raised and the blind see and the dead rise to the glory of God to stand against injustice and strife so that it has no place in the world, where will these people go? Who will fill the churches when they have won and the truth of God is taught in schools. They all plan to leave this world and its trouble and therefore I did not feel I had a way to enlist them. I realized that this is no longer a work that seeks an endorsement. To the contrary, more than ever it is a work to make the wise look foolish. That includes me, for I am only the messenger and the glory belongs to God, for His is the power and the glory forever. And so I returned home to finish these pages and to look for another way that I might submit them to the masses and not to the few.

There are two sides to this same two-headed coin and both heads have no eyes to see. As the “Churches” who call themselves ministries, squeeze “guilt” offerings out of the flock on one side of the isle: the Church of the Politically Correct reminds it’s listeners that if they do not support the “Intellectual” argument, that they will be over run by these “Inquisitors”. They solicit the old to leave their inheritance to these institutions rather than to their children. It does not take wisdom nor education to know what interests PBS (Radio and Television) panders to. An open mind is all that is required when images are associated with the phrase “We are PBS”. But being pandered to is not the same as being served.

In the entire history of Mankind on this planet, there have only been “TWO” centuries in which power came to ‘common individuals’ through reason and a popular consensus. Prior to that it was only through violent conquest that power was delegated. Those without power were not equal to their masters and so they were either, meek and powerless, or they were in rebellion. Rebellion meant constant bloodshed in the “Baptism of Fire”. Then came a “New Thing”: the First, the Alpha of its kind, and it was personified in a Man whose name was Jesus. They will tell you that this title of “Alpha” means that Jesus existed from the beginning; that He is God the Father. But they are blind guides. They will tell you that it is because He exists from beginning to end, from Alpha to Omega, that this is the truth. But this meaning of Alpha and Omega is for the Father. Jesus, the beloved Son, is the first and the last. First to conquer the self-serving who follow he who was cast out of Heaven for his unwillingness to serve Mankind. Last because He put Himself last as He demonstrated by washing the feet of His Disciples at the “Last Supper”.

In this context of following the example of The Christ, meekness has always been associated with Godliness. So it was that when I was a child, women were not offended by being called the “Weaker Sex”: despite the fact that, even then, it was said “tongue in cheek”, because men have always loved women more than good sense. “Science” has demonstrated that Women are more likely to follow. It is part of being more social, more vocal.

A little over a hundred years after the birth of the first modern Democracy, the women of this country “Demanded” the “God Given Right “ to vote. And while the Women’s Movement has tried to make it look as though Women forced Men to concede power; it was given to them. Half a century later the Civil Rights Movement flowered. But not long after the movement began to gain equal footing, it became about Power and Entitlement and from that day to this, women have been seduced with the notion of it. The “Self Interests” of Minorities (which includes the elderly; and the Gays), have been used to make them the puppets of real power and Women have been enticed to align themselves and “Follow”. While Jesus was perfected in surrender, women now follow power and Men follow Women.

John Mayer got a nomination for a song he sings about how messed up girls become without a meaningful relationship with their father. But the only reason the song was acclaimed for acknowledging that need was because the song blamed the Father. The role of the Father on earth is modeled after the role of the Father who art in Heaven. It is modeled in strength built upon a foundation of love. That role is at odds with a philosophy of power for the purpose of self-interest. So that often times, it is not the Father who has failed the daughter, but Mothers and Daughters who reject the authority of any Father Figure. What’s more, the world and in particular, these United States, has followed after. And when at last you have sought out “The Secret Scroll” (fore it exists physically), and come to understand its meaning, you will understand the harm we have done. But, for now, girls stand on a metaphorical playground, with their body metaphorically bruised and their nose metaphorically bloodied; and they say, “This boy doesn’t fight fair in this fight that I picked. I will report him to the Principal and see him punished”. But it is not a boy they fight. It is “The Beast” that they fight and it is the “The Beast” that they run to. But it is the boy who is punished: your boy. Your boy, who along with your daughters, found no one to fight for them, to stand for them.

Like the church ministries who promise to make the world a better place if given the resources, so too does the “Church Of The Immaculate Political Correctness” promise to make it all better if we will tithe our money and our future and our “POWER” to it and its ministers. And like the church ministries, were this world to turn from its corruption and to the Laws of God, there would no longer be a need for them.

What neither of these conflicting “Red” and “Blue” interests have addressed is the power which both claim to do battle against. Another thing one hears on the radio from sea to shining sea is the seemingly secular outrages of the “Shock Jocks”. Interestingly enough, one often hears such outrages prefaced with the statement “this might cost me my job but here goes”. But I doubt that jobs are at risk. To the contrary, I am a student of cause and effect. It is those who control money, who control corporations, who now control all the media and with it public perception. One station I listened to violated my public sensibilities with regard to sexually explicit remarks thinly veiled behind a ketchup bottle analogy. Another informed me that people seemed to be trending toward the idea that Freedom of Speech maybe shouldn’t be so free. “Tech” education is not the education that protects freedom but it is the carrot we are seduced to strive for. Similarly, a system of delayed broadcast, subject to editing, hasn’t any place in a Free Society. To promote such an idea would cause a negative reaction. To promote and protect the abuse of Free Speech is the Trojan Horse used to entice fools to champion the regulation of Free Speech. But Free Speech under regulation is not Free Speech. Therefore, punishment after the fact can be the only remedy. The Corporate Media punished Janet Jackson with a Billion dollars worth of free advertising. While your Forefathers gathered in Inns as well as Churches to discuss politics, politics has been replaced with sports through the promotion of gambling, and politics (along with religion) has been all but banned in bars. Intoxication has been redefined to mean a drink with supper. Obese children are allowed to eat from vending machines in schools but adults are forbidden to smoke in adult meeting places. Health Care has been used to make the money argument for intervention with regard to tobacco and soon it will be used to suppress those children allowed to smoke and grow obese on junk food. But neither issue will be discussed over a beer at the Inn because the reasons for assembly have been systematically outlawed to keep us at home in front of the indoctrination machine. I say these things so that you will understand that these are the days, and that the door is closing.

It is a dangerous game to play at making definitive statements about Bible Text: particularly as they relate to Revelations. But it is appropriate at this time for me to show you some things and ask as to their possible meaning. To begin with, you must never assume a time sequence based on order within the text. Also, things can appear to be in sequence because the word “then” is interjected, but are in fact, happening at the same time or even in the same “Age”. For example, the woman who gives birth to a child and is pursued by the Red Dragon can be seen as the Bride of Christ (The Pilgrims from Old Europe), who gave birth to a nation, America, based in Christianity: hence the reference to a child of Heaven. That same Bride was taken away from Religious Persecution and hid in the American wilderness. Those who gave birth to a Nation of Christian principles would become a nation with a government forced to protect religious freedom. A government expressed as the wings of an eagle. Furthermore, the Bride will await the Bridegroom until the end of His thousand-year reign. Of course, that means substituting years for days. To truly understand the measures taken by the Dragon to drown this Nation born of Christianity, as well as how it was defended, you need to learn the lessons taught in the “Money Masters”. To understand the connections between the Beast that received a mortal wound (that is the Beast that was and is not), you need to learn what is being shared on the DVD “911”, and the connections Mike Ruppert makes between our Government and the Fascists of WWII. You will come to see that they are once more.

When you stand at the sea and look out across the horizon, the sea gives way to Heaven above. So too, when standing at the base of the World Trade Center and looking up, would a “Sea of Glass” have given way to Heaven. So that the significance of these days is born out in Revelations 15:2 if you are willing to see. The Great City of Jerusalem is split between Synagogues, Mosques and Churches; or ‘in three’ as the Book of Revelations predicts. If Justice, which is Light, is manifest into the world, many will be judged. If the head of the Beast, which all the others serve, is the Central Banks as described in the “Money Masters”, then these men who dream of world domination are likely the eighth.

Regardless of whether these are the signs that mark the coming of the Lord, when the signs come, they will be metaphorical in nature. No multi-headed “Beast” will appear. No Dragon will spew water. Nor will Christ appear in the flesh to rule in the flesh. Those who insist that He will, do not understand the meaning or the significance of the Centurion’s story. Nor will His body rise to rule through Mankind so long as you are mired in your corruption. Those who say that it will do not understand why He appeared to Mary but would not let her touch Him before He ascended to the Father. You are the body, the Holy Grail and receptacle of the sacrament, but you are mired in your corruption. It is you who will choose to glorify God by standing down, or you will instead take the mark of the Beast “IN” your forehead (in your mind). It is those who reject Him who make the Body sick and therefore they will be spewed out of the Body as promised.

Had I developed a unifying theory of the universe and followed it with an interpretation of the Mysteries of God as revealed through the Bible; only to decide that I would presume to design a new world model: you would have every right to chastise me. But the truth is that, if you take the time to learn my story as I have lived it, you would find that it was the book that came first. It is those things, which have come in its wake and from Scripture I did not know until the appointed time, that have confirmed the book. There will be those who accuse me of defaming the Jews. I fight for Israel. It has always been that the Jewish people have been used by God to demonstrate what must happen for the sake of the world. From their turning away from God to their turning toward God, their story is the path by which we are guided.

All my life, as I was born in the wake of the Nazi Concentration Camps, the Death Camps: I have heard of the 6,000,000 Jews who died. But it is rare that it is mentioned that Jehovah's Witnesses died, or that Gypsies died, or that Homosexuals died. Jews have seized the event as their own. No one can deny that they were made the scapegoat for those forces who truly did thwart the Germans in WWI. But to say that the ways in which Jews interact as a subculture made them an easy target, would label me an Anti-Semite. To try and explain that the inner workings of their religious culture gave them an advantage against "The Money Masters" that others did not have, is not allowed. To imagine that their "relative" prosperity, amidst the crushing economic decline of people who were becoming more and more radicalized toward National Pride and Fascism, made the stories of their complicity seem believable: to even imagine it is taboo. To try to express to them that Christians (or even countrymen) are supposed to include everyone and sink or swim together, would be lost in the "fact" that in their own "Self Righteousness" the German people lost their Christianity to hate. Still, among their other critics we find names like Isaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel. These men did not teach Entitlement, but rather the need to submit to God. So that I will risk telling you that the most disturbing thing to be learned from the death camps is not that the Germans, who hated Jews, were killing Jews. The most disturbing thing is that many Jews were complicit in order to live a little better or a little longer. This is the difference between the Jews who were fed to the Lions of Rome as Christians and many of the Jews who met their fate at the hand of Germany. It gives us no reason to judge Jews as a People. Christ interceded on their behalf before God and the world. He forgave all involved for crucifying Him even as they did it, because they did not know what they were doing. So how can Jews be singled out as accountable? Nor do you, Jew and non-Jew alike; know what you are doing in your complicity in these days. But God has made them a guide for you so that you would understand that it is your own complicity that keeps the wheels of injustice turnings, and just as those wheels will not stop so long as you are complicit, neither will they turn if you refuse to participate.

Webster's defines "Semite" as one who speaks a Semitic language, which includes both Hebrew and Arabic. But Jews use it to refer only to themselves. As for my being an Anti-Semite: my generation of White American Males has born the blame of Black Slavery, Native American Genocide, and Male Chauvinism though we were born in their wake and denounced all. We are not allowed an opinion without being called Homophobe, or Red Neck or Anti-Semite. We are not allowed to work together as a sub-culture without being labeled Good Old Boys and what's more we have refrained from the practice and denounced that as well. The Minorities of this country have lost sight of that. I am, first and foremost, a Christian. I am bound by Covenant to speak out against the unfair and the unjust, even if those who are acting unfairly are "Individuals" within the Jewish race. Until all peoples of all races and genders can admit their complicity in the Baptism of Fire with the same strength of character exhibited by that generation of young men I grew up with, we will have no peace. It is my place to point out the complicity of all mankind, and by that measure, to fight for all the dead of the world. To exclude the Semites: to leave them dead in Christ, blind, to be judged unrepentant in these Latter Days; that would be the greatest Anti-Semitic act of all.

I cannot know, nor do I have the math skills or even the time to compare these observations on "E" to the facts, as we understand them. What is true for the work I do concerning Einstein's formula is true for the Bible. Had the book "Revolution Number Ten" been about me, it would never have led me to the truth. In that same way, it seems the time has come for me to share this with the world. When first I went out, in the wake of 9/11, to deliver the solutions for the cause of Christ, I went out as one who has surrendered to God to do the bidding of the Bridegroom. No place at which I delivered a case of books found anyone willing to read the news it brought concerning the knowledge laid out in "The Money Masters". Nor did they read to find the hypotheses concerning $E=MC^2$, even though "A Riddle" was left with each case of books: a riddle that demonstrated our place in the Universe.

So that all trace of the knowledge I delivered was erased; washed away, so far as I can tell. That was over twelve hundred days ago. So that, I will tell you what I know for your sake, and I will not withhold the news for mine.

I must, therefore, tell you what I suspect I would find if I had both the time and the skill. I think it makes sense to look at Barometric Pressure as “E- Pressure”. It is part of the distribution equation. Free Energy is governed by the same laws as water and electricity. Hydraulic pressure, resistance, displacement: they are all references. The flow of electricity is the flow of “E”. Just as voltage works like pipe diameter and amperage like pressure, we will come to understand that, what we once thought to be the pull of the Sun’s gravity, is the flow of Energy at high volume and low pressure in that direction. What’s more, that it is in reaction to the high pressure, higher volume of Energy heading away from the Sun. Furthermore, the Universe is not infinite at all, but rather it is the encapsulation of the physical word. All the physical laws exist as a result of the tension caused by the “Backpressure” of “E” within an expanding Universe. That backpressure is maintained by an expanding volume of “E” within an expanding Universe as a result of the unraveling of Matter.

Here on earth, it is at the Equator that the Energy from the Sun is most concentrated like light to the eye. Light is high voltage, high amperage. Its volume, its wattage, is relative to the amount of light allowed to enter. The Sun (warmth=Energy) brings moisture to the air. The moisture absorbs Energy between, and probably within, its molecules. Orbit generates the resistance caused by “oncoming” “E” above the atmosphere. It coincides with the flow of “E” toward the Earth’s core, to keep the energy from dissipating freely out of the atmosphere. The adhesion between molecules, along with this flow of “E”, bonds together the atmosphere to keep it from dissipating outward. The “Relatively” low amount of free Energy found in molecules of stone present a low E-Pressure, which in turn generates a flow potential toward the Earth's core. The "Going To Ground" of electricity is a result of the need for Energy to travel in the direction of flow.

When we add fertilizer to water using a sprayer attachment on the end of a hose, the "Vortex" that is created is the force that moves fertilizer up from the spray bottle. In a similar fashion, if we take a magnet and set metal spinning in proximity we can create a "Field" of Energy in which some molecules are at high pressures of Energy and others remain at low pressures. By attaching a "Ground" path with a conductive material, we can cause Energy to be "Channeled" in a flow to "Ground". It mimics the whirlpool at the bottom of your bathtub. This way of looking at Energy flow demonstrates why lightning travels up from the ground. The E-Pressure in a relatively small area of the atmosphere will be relatively constant. That is to say, it will not gather along lines such as a lightning bolt. But when a good "Ground" suddenly rotates beneath a "High Energy" area, it will lower resistance like a pinhole in a balloon. Static Electricity is "E Pressure". I would guess that it includes E-Pressure (high Energy levels) within molecular structures as well as between molecular structures. Lightning is then the lowering of individual molecular E-Pressures as energy is released from within molecules into a stream of energy passing between molecules heading for ground. The forces at work mimic your fertilizer sprayer. The stream of Energy gathers more Energy (heat). As resistance builds (too much Energy for the path to accommodate) heat accumulates and emits Energy waves in the form of light and sound that we call thunder and lighting. Water molecules expel Energy and condense from vapor to liquid. The clouds that were reflecting sunlight back into space to lower the accumulation of "E Pressure" present in "Heaven" dissipate and the cycle begins anew. It is the nature of light's speed that enables molecules to deflect (reflect) Energy that would pass on through at lower speeds.

All this energy constantly flowing to the ground finds the Earth expelling excess Energy at the poles but without moisture or heat from the Sun there is little "Resistance". Depending on the "Tilt" of the Earth, one “Pole” will give less resistance than the other, causing the flow of Energy to be greater in that direction and pulling that Pole along with it until equilibrium is reached. Beyond equilibrium the direction of flow will be changed, reversed. The reversal will set the Pole in motion toward a reverse pivot, causing what we call the “Seasons”. Because heat is only detected in relatively high E Pressures, and because the Earth itself is spinning at the Poles, Energy flows from the Earth’s core and back beyond the atmosphere almost undetected, even though it moves with the volume of a tornado or a hurricane. The only real evidence comes as energy buffets against O-Zone molecules. These molecules of O-Zone are pressed up against “E” outside the atmosphere and bound to other molecules within the atmosphere. But the “Relative Pressure” of “E” outside the atmosphere at the poles is very, very low. Because of the aerodynamic nature of the Earth’s curvature at the poles, “Relative” to that dynamic at the Equator with regard to the Earth’s trajectory through the Fabric of the Universe, there is little resistance. That is to say, in the same way light is focused at the Equator and weak at the poles, so too is the tension between Earth’s trajectory and the Universal Fabric, diminished at the polar extreme. The result mimics compressed air shot against a dusty sail. What we witness is a hole in that O-Zone layer and the higher the Energy Levels on Earth, the greater the outward pressure.

There must be balance between the resistance caused by our trajectory through the Fabric of the Universe and a mitigating force of propulsion. That mitigating force is found in the vortexes at the poles in the form of generated thrust, with Planet Earth acting as an electric motor. But remember, Energy traveling at “Relatively” low speeds has “Relatively” little effect on its surroundings. It is most likely, the flow of “E” to “Ground” which give us the “Pull” we call Gravity on Earth. But the “Push” of “E” as a result of tension between Atmosphere and Universal Fabric plays a significant role as well. If these hypotheses are true, then the Moon has a positive “E” flow to its core as well, which effects “E” flow on Earth, thereby effecting tides as well as light beams as they pass by. This is how delicate the balance is. How perfect life is.

When looking at the physical world in this way, it makes sense to think of Oxygen as an Element that is very flexible and having a low E-Pressure, rather than a high E-Pressure. This Low Pressure gives it the potential to carry off large amounts of Energy when combined with Carbon or Hydrogen. This “Flow” potential is why it is an accelerant in combustion. It also gives insight as to why it extinguishes combustion once it is bound in H₂O, or CO₂.

I have come to believe that the book “Revolution Number Ten” was as much an inspired work as was my understanding of Scripture. I believe, if there is truth in my understanding of $E=MC^2$, that it too is confirmation of my place to teach you these things: to give you a unifying theory of the Universe so that you might be prepared to be unified in Christ. To give you a new insight into the Physical World that would help you understand the Metaphysical World. I have no other agenda. If truth is what I have given you, it cannot be denied that it came to me because I sought first to serve and that in looking to God for answers I was led to truth. The forward progression of Mankind is not the evolution of genetics. It has come as a result of knowledge in constant battle with ignorance. The Society that we live in here in America today has “Evolved” as a result of the foundation set down by God in the Bible. We have had to grow both spiritually and intellectually to come this far and all of that has taken time. That is the purpose of our existence. To demonstrate that we can move forward of our own free will to the glory of God in spite of the corruption of selfishness through the ages. But just as the balance of nature is delicate, so too is the balance of Freedom and Constraint. A few more degrees of temperature will see the end of Mankind on this planet. This balance too, is metaphor for the fragile nature of the equilibrium which must exist between ‘Inquisition’ and ‘Free Radical’. Satan will always push us toward one extreme or the other. But the straight path, the narrow gate, hangs in balance between the two evils. In the end, there will be nothing left in this universe except “E”, except God the Father, the Alpha and Omega. There will be no crowding to the next seat. There will be peace and equilibrium in the physical world and in that you should be able to see the metaphor for that which life prepares us to either except or reject: the metaphysical world wherein the Holy Spirit presides. The parallel Universe separated from us by time. This is the description of the Second Resurrection. It is the First Resurrection that we have come to in these days. In order to achieve it, it will be necessary for you to believe: to accept and not reject the possibility of its existence in this physical world.

If we believe in one true living God, then all religions that do not proclaim His truth, are false. And as Satan is the Great Deceiver, we can understand, even anticipate, that He will “Spin” the truth in order to deceive. The Hindu religion is based on a belief that people are “Born Again”. But it teaches that the rebirth is of a physical nature. It is a religion that allows those who practice inequity to reassure those suffering that inequity that if they remain both complacent and complicit they will be rewarded in the next life. It also promises that they will be punished if they fail to submit. The Church Steeples point to Heaven with the same promise. Social Security and the Welfare State make a similar pledge, but as it is a secular religion, it promises that if you live long enough you can retire. “Man does not live by bread alone, but by that which proceeds from the mouth of God”. I have spent some fourteen or fifteen years trying to explain all the ways that the world is at variance with the word of God. It is not the words that we are to worship, but the meaning of the words. That meaning is the Law. It has been revealed as new wine to a new skin: in its time. The story of Creation is encapsulated in the first chapter of Genesis. God’s plan, that you would one day remove Satan and his systems from this world and raise in their place the Laws of God as personified in His beloved Son Jesus, is completed before the dawn of the seventh day. On that day we begin a new chapter with God at rest. Through the ages, those who prevailed in their individual times in their individual ways and who are now asleep, found comfort in the knowledge of the Second Resurrection to come. All the while, Mankind awaited the appointed day, when the body of Christ would reach “Critical Mass” in the First Resurrection. And so we see the symmetry of all things.

If you listen to the Theologians of the ages, you will discover that they have built up a vocabulary of words and ideas that are as alien to the average layman as is the mathematics of the physicists. I have given you a view of God’s plan and of the Universe that is “relatively” simple. Fore all its complexities, in the end, truth is relatively simple. If all that I have written is idiocy, so be it. Never the less, here I am, prostrate before my God and the world to deliver this message.
